Gov. Schweiker, Candidates Address Ag Progress Luncheon

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania Gov. Mark Schweiker spoke about pride.

And Pennsylvania's farmers responded with pride, giving standing ovations as Schweiker was introduced, as he spoke, and again when he completed his speech to hundreds of farm families at the Wednesday luncheon during Penn State's Ag Progress Days.

The two gubernatorial candidates to take his place after the state's general election Nov. 5 followed Schweiker.

The governor's "legacy of pride" for Pennsylvania reached national eminence one day late in July.

"It was a Sunday morning, and those nine miners came back to the surface, to the air I breathe right here in this fine hall," he said about the Quecreek Mine disaster near Somerset late last month. There, nine miners spent three days trapped in the mine, while 200 rescue workers brought them successfully to the surface, on a field at the edge of a farm owned by Lori and Bill Arnold.

Persistent Drought Deepens Across Lower Susquehanna, Delaware Valleys

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — "Wanted: Rainmaker — Apply Within."

That's the message written on the sign at Starr Pottery & Bronze Barn near Abottstown, Adams County. It expresses the wish of a lot of people across the region — not just farmers.

"We have two kinds of drought," said Paul Craig, extension agent in Dauphin County. "We have the agronomic drought that affects crops, and we have the long-term groundwater drought."

Crops from Fulton County to the eastern reaches of the state will probably yield about 50 percent of a normal harvest, with some areas producing as low as 10-15 percent of a crop, Craig said.

Corn planted in the latter part of May is the hardest hit because of the high temperatures and dry conditions that prevailed during the critical pollination stage, he said.

Extension agent Del Voigt said he recently made a count of 500 ears on a 28,000-plant-per-acre stand of corn in Lebanon County. That amounts to ears on less than 20 percent of the stalks, not to mention the small size of the ears.

"There are pockets that are in better shape," Voigt said. "They're the exception." These

Farmers Ask For Better Weed Control In CREP Fields

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

DANVILLE (Montour Co.) — Jay Wissler is concerned about stands of Canada thistles growing near the land he farms in Montour County. He believes the white, downy seeds drift into his fields and increase the weed pressure on his corn, soybean, and small grain crops.

The problem, Wissler claims, is caused by the "mismanagement" of noxious weeds under the federal Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), started in 1985, and the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP), mandated in the 1996 Freedom to Farm Act and reauthorized in the new Farm Bill.

"I wouldn't mind if these places had a few thistles, but this is criminal," Wissler said.

Landowners enrolled in either program are responsible for controlling weeds and are subject to penalties if they fail to do so, according to William Foose of the state Farm Service Agency (FSA), the arm of the USDA that manages the programs.

"Within the contract, it's pretty clear they have to control the weeds," Foose said. Landowners enrolled in CREP also need to implement a program that establishes one or more plant types, including warm-season grasses, cool-season grasses, or trees native to the state. Plantings can be designated as riparian (waterway) buffers to enhance water quality and as other uses that protect soil and wildlife habitat.

CREP landowners are paid cost-share funds for seeding, and

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
August 21, 2002
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.3169-1.4040. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.3266-1.4137 mostly 1.3556-1.3944.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .9750-1.0200; Class III - spot prices - .8700-.9200.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This week - In 94, Out 0; last week - In 68, Out 0; last year - In 156, Out 0. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week - In 0, Out 0; last week - In 0, Out 0; last year - In 182, Out 0.

During July, milk production in the 20 major states totaled 12.30 billion pounds, up 2.3% from July 2001. The following are the July-to-July changes for selected states: Texas up 6.7%, New York up 4.4%, Virginia up 2.0%, Vermont down 0.4%, Florida down 1.6%, Pennsylvania down 1.7%, and Kentucky down 3.0%. The Northeast's heat wave broke early in the week, but temperatures are still quite high in the Middle Atlantic area and the Southeast. Milk output ranges from steady in the Northeast to still falling in the Deep South. Reports indicate the milk output in Louisiana is falling noticeably due to the hot, dry conditions that persist. Florida's milk output is declining in the more southern counties while steady further north.

Fluid milk supplies are steady to generally tighter. School reopenings are drawing more milk in the southern portions of the region. Florida's need for "outside" milk is slowly increasing, but not up to anticipated volumes due to lighter needs and higher than expected milk output. This week's milk came from Michigan and Pennsylvania. Handlers in other Southeastern states are starting to bring in milk to meet needs, but this milk is, so far, intra-organization shipments and not counted in the spot total. In the Middle Atlantic area, school lunch pipelines are being filled. Typically, orders for milk range back and forth between heavy and light before they settle into normal routines when all schools get back in session. In New York and New England states, schools open after Labor Day and bottling schedules won't be affected until late next week. Surplus milk supplies are light and some operations have had to cut back on processing schedules.

The condensed skim market is little changed. Prices are steady and demand is quite good. Some butter/powder plants are clearing all their skim solids as a liquid and have nothing left to dry.

The fluid cream market is firm as supplies have tightened seasonally. Offerings are the tightest early in the week, while slightly more available after Wednesday. Spot prices are often lower as the CME cash butter average did fall another two-plus cents last week. Spot demand for cream is seasonally very good. Despite the high (often in the low 140's) multiples, many users see cream prices as very low for this time of year. The last time the Grade AA butter price was under $1.00 was during August 1995 and the last time the Grade A (then the basis for most cream sales) was this low was during August 1997. Ice cream makers are taking quite a few extra/spot loads now that cream prices are so low and demand for their products is seasonally high. Cream cheese makers are also taking extra loads of cream when they are available. Churning activity is limited.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

AUG. 26–SEPT. 1, 2002

WOMEN'S EQUALITY DAY, AUG. 26

CONFUCIUS SAYS . . .

Born (by some estimates) on August 27, 551 B.C., the great Chinese philosopher Confucius was named Kong Qiu by his parents. In China, he is still known by Kong Zi, Kong Fuzi, or Master Kong rather than by the name Confucius, given to him by a Western missionary. Confucianism addressed the needs of society. Not a religion but more a code of conduct, it taught virtues such as filial piety, courtesy, righteousness, loyalty, sincerity, trustworthiness, and benevolence. Confucianism was an integral part of Chinese culture for over 2,000 years, and its influence is still felt today.

–Confucius, Chinese philosopher (551 B.C.–479 B.C.)

TIP OF THE WEEK

To prevent sticky noodles, add a tablespoon of cooking oil to boiling water before adding pasta.

CHINESE NOODLES

1 pound angel-hair pasta
1 cup safflower oil
2-1/2 tablespoons sesame oil
2 teaspoons hot chili oil
2 tablespoons sesame seeds
3 tablespoons ground coriander
3/4 cup soy sauce
1 bunch scallions, chopped
1/2 cup coarsely chopped walnuts

Cook the pasta, cool and set aside. In a pan, heat the three oils and add the sesame seeds. Remove from heat, then add the coriander and soy sauce. Stir in scallions and walnuts, then add the sauce to the pasta. Refrigerate.

Makes 6 servings.

OPINION

Conservation Program Threatened

Guest Editorial By Read Smith
President, National Association Of Conservation Districts

An excellent program that will help farmers implement conservation measures on their land is at risk.

The Conservation Security Program (CSP) was included in the 2002 Farm Bill, which was signed into law by President Bush earlier this year. It was to allocate $2 billion, most of it in incentive payments, to encourage conservation practices on cropland, grazing lands, and forest lands.

CSP was intended to be a nationwide program, open to any farmer large or small who wanted to make environmental improvements on his or her farm.

Now the agriculture appropriations committee of the U.S. House of Representatives wants to water down the CSP and turn it into a pilot program, limited to only a few farms in one state, Iowa. This would be a major setback to growers and to the environment.

The reasons to adopt CSP are as sound today as they were in May when both houses of Congress agreed it should be part of the new Farm Bill. CSP is a major recognition that working farmlands are a critical factor in the environmental and ecological equation. Other farm programs, such as Conservation Reserve, take sensitive land out of production, but this new program addresses conservation on the millions of acres that remain in production.

Farmers have long recognized that the practices they employ on their land can have either a positive or a negative impact on the environment. The way we handle waste and manage soil erosion can have a major effect on community watersheds. For many years, soil and water conservation districts and the Natural Resource Conservation Service have worked with growers to develop and implement techniques that minimize the impact of producing food and fiber.

Many growers have implemented nutrient and pest management plans. Others have planted buffer strips along streams or established trees to firm up riverbanks. Still others are planting winter cover crops or establishing grass waterways. Every year, thousands of new acres are converted to direct seeding, which can reduce soil loss by 90 percent or more and provide food and habitat for wildlife.

Farmers have done this on their own, even though it has meant a major commitment of time to learn new practices, money to purchase new equipment, and land diverted from productive use. CSP will ensure that growers who have made the commitment will stay the course and it will provide incentives for other farms to incorporate similar improvements.

CSP also provides an avenue for the nonfarming community to support the environmental improvements that are sought by our society as a whole, including cleaner water, less erosion of topsoil, and a better environment for wildlife. When car manufacturers were told to improve gas mileage and reduce emissions, they were able to pass on their costs. When power plants were told to reduce their air emissions, those costs were included on utility bills.

Farm field runoff is in the spotlight now, but farmers have no way to pass on their costs, a reality that is reflected in the CSP cost-sharing incentives. Erosion and runoff are serious environmental issues. Sedimentation impairs more miles of stream than any other water pollutant in the U.S. It chokes out aquatic life, spoils streams for recreation, and poses difficult problems for water treatment facilities. When soil particles wash off fields, they can carry manure, pesticides, and fertilizer with them.

In recent years, agriculture has made major improvements in reducing topsoil loss. CSP is a way to expand that improvement. CSP is a benefit for growers, it is a benefit for the environment, and it benefits society as a whole. It is a program that will work if Congress will give it a chance.

To Take Stock Of Your Silage, Forage Inventories

Will you have enough silage and other forages to carry you through to the next harvest season? Lancaster Dairy Agent Glenn Shirk suggests you check your current inventories, anticipate your yields for this year, and determine if you will have sufficient quantities.

Many corn fields that were planted for grain will be salvaged as silage because of poor ear development and poor pollination. If these fields do produce grain, it could have lighter bushel weights and lower feed value because of severe drought stress. Poor kernel development could also result in lower feed value of silage; according to some tests, its feeding value may only be 91 percent of that of normal-eared silage.

Corn with no ears can have fairly good feed value because a lot of its nutrients are retained in the stalk, and even though fiber levels may be higher, it can sometimes be more digestible. On the other hand, if the corn becomes too dry and starts "burning up" its nutrient reserves in a desperate effort to survive, its feed value might only be 66 percent or less of that of more normal silage.

So, as you try to determine the value of silage, consider moisture, kernel development, ear development, harvesting, and transportation costs and other problems such as spoilage, nitrates, etc. Also remember that this year's silage may not pack as well. That increases the risk of spoilage and it means silos will hold less tonnage; silos will get empty more quickly, so you may need to "put up" some extra silage in bags and other storage facilities.

To Care For Next Year's Strawberry Crop

Late August and Early September is when strawberries set their fruit buds for next year's crop. In the conventional production system, they also produce additional runners during this period as well. There are several steps you can take to maximize the potential of next years crop.

First, you need to irrigate to relieve drought stress on the plants. Since water is short through this dry weather, you may be tempted to skip the strawberries since there is no fruit in the field at this time. This would be a serious mistake and will reduce the potential of next year's crop. Irrigation will relieve the water stress, which will put the plants in a good condition to produce fruit buds.

A number of growers experienced a mediocre crop this spring. When discussing this with these producers, I learned they did not irrigate last fall. This certainly contributed to the less-than-desirable crop this spring.

The other step you should take now is the second application of nitrogen. You should have fertilized with about 40 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre in early July at renovation. If you did that, you should now add an additional 20 pounds of nitrogen per acre to give the plants another boost. If you did not fertilize at renovation, then add 40 pounds of nitrogen per acre now. Irrigate to incorporate the fertilizer.

If the current dry weather persists, continue to irrigate through September. When the temperatures drop in the fall, strawberries resume vigorous growth and it is important to remove the water stress to enable the plants to produce next year's buds and runners.

To Update Your Acreage, Base, And Yield Records With The Farm Service Agency

Commodity producers have until Aug. 31, 2002 to verify and update records on planted and prevented planted acres filed with the Farm Service Agency, according to Richard Pallman, Pennsylvania state executive director, FSA. Nonparticipating producers who do not have an existing Production Flexibility Contract (PFC) contract with FSA also have until Aug. 31 to report acreage and provide verifiable documentation of prior year plantings if they want to participate in all farm programs for the 2002 through 2007 crop years.

"Reviewing, verifying, and updating bases and yields may be the most important thing we ask producers to do this year," said Alarie Fleming, program section chief of the FSA state office. "The information we have on file must be correct in order for producers to receive accurate direct and counter-cyclical payments in the future."

To assist, FSA is sending letters to producers across the country asking for their updates. The letter includes a summary acreage history report showing 2002 PFC crops and contract acreage along with acreage history by crop for each of the years 1998 through 2001 for covered commodities. Included are planted acres and/or acres prevented from being planted for 1998 through 2001.

If the information in the letter is correct, and changes are not necessary, the producer does nothing. If the information is not correct, a producer should visit the local FSA offices before the Aug. 31 deadline and provide verifiable documentation of planted and/or prevented planted acreage and yields. Verifiable documentation may include seed receipts, production records, and crop insurance records.

THE POVERTY OF WEALTH

Background Scripture:
Proverbs 19;17; 22:1-4, 8, 9, 16, 22,23; 23:10,11.

Devotional Reading:
Proverbs 19;1-8.

By the time you go to bed this evening, 35,000 poor children throughout the world will have died in this 24-hour period. Thirty-five thousand died yesterday and another 35,000 will die tomorrow. In our own country, more than 15 million children live in poverty and nine million lack basic health care.

In the 1990s we celebrated "the victory of capitalism over communism." Yet, as Professor Joerg Rieger reminds us, since this "victory," poverty levels in both faraway places and at home have mushroomed alarmingly. The victory celebration was premature. Not only are the poor "still with us," but there are so many more of them.

Concurrent with the growth of worldwide poverty has been a dramatic change in the way we think and speak about the poor. Many today blame the poor for their poverty. The helpless and indolent are all poured together into one category and judged to deserve their poverty.

A Question Of 'Worth'

Even many of those who believe in ministering to the poor assume that we ought to limit this ministry to those who are "worthy." That is a self-serving attitude because it provides us with comfortable limits of benevolence. Whatever you and I have been given is gift of grace. Whatever we give to others is also a matter of grace. It is all grace!

In all the Bible I do not think you will find any suggestion that we are called to minister only to those who are worthy. In Proverbs 17:5, when the sage says, "He who mocks the poor insults his Maker," he does not add "unless they deserve it"! In Prov. 19:7, when he says "He who is kind to the poor lends to the Lord, and he will repay him for his deed," the question of whether these poor are worthy is never raised. In 21:13, when the sage warns, "He who closes his ear to the cry of the poor will himself cry out and not be heard," he does not modify it with "unless the poor deserve their poverty."

In all, there are 35 references to the "poor" in the Book of Proverbs, more than in any other book of the Bible, although copious references are also found in the Psalms, the prophetic books and the New Testament. This theme runs through the Bible from beginning to end.

Although many of us today close our eyes and ears to the plight of the poor, the Bible presents the ministry to the poor, not as an elective for Christians, but an imperative at the very heart of the Good News of Jesus Christ. There can be no room in Christian discipleship for what Stephen Vincent Benet called "the arrogance of the rich — an arrogance so vast and unconscious that it seems like a natural force."

The World Of Things

I am concerned today for both the poor and all the rest of us, whether we are middle class, affluent, or wealthy. Our problem is not only that we ignore the plight of the poor — and even blame them for it — but that we are so enamored of the world of things that our own souls are in jeopardy.

As Henry van Dyke once warned us, "Remember, what you possess in the world will be found at the day of your death to belong to someone else, but what you are will be yours forever."

Actually, if we are affluent (and who among us would admit that we are?), we are impoverished in a way we might not suspect. The sage tells us, "He who loves pleasure will be a poor man; he who loves wine and oil will not be rich" (21:17). Furthermore, Erich Hoffer observes that "Our frustration is greater when we have much and want more when we have nothing and want some. We are less dissatisfied when we lack many things than when we seem to lack but one thing." While the poor person is in danger of starvation, we are in danger of damnation!

The writer of Proverbs promises us, "He who is kind to the poor lends to the Lord, and he will repay him for his deed" (19:17). And he who is not kind to the poor will learn what it means to be afflicted with the poverty of wealth.

Berks County Grazier Maximizes Soil Returns

BETHEL (Berks Co.) — Eleven years ago changes began taking place in the pastures of Papa Farm.

When Brian Mohn began his pasture based program it was hard to find information on rotational grazing, he said. "I read Lancaster Farming articles and got ideas that migrated from Lancaster.

Mohn, along with his wife Karen, and daughters Beverly 12, Carolyn 10 and Judy 8 have managed the farm for 11 years for a Philadelphia businessman.

His investigation into grazing came because of a concern for good use of the ground. he said. "I wanted to get the most out of this moderately productive ground.

A lot of it was trial and error initially, he said. County agents helped in his education by conducting pasture walks and grazier discussions that helped to educate Mohn.

In the initial days I traveled to Lancaster for pasture information to learn about water quality projects, he said. Besides adding streambank fencing Mohn has put in his own concrete stream crossings.

Now to get a profitable operation I don't see any other way you can be in the cow/calf business without being in the grazing business, he said. Because of smaller-framed animals with improved genetics — and carefully maintained pastures that the animals do not have to be fed supplemental hay or grain for the most part the operation's costs have declined.

Pennsylvania Spokesman

A year ago Mohn went to America's Forage and Grassland Council's conference in Springdale Arkansas as Pennsylvania's spokesman. Every spokesperson gave a 12-minute presentation on what forages mean to them.

"The main audience is university researchers USDA pasture management people scientists and extension agents he said. "We were given the opportunity to teach the teachers. They wanted more information to take back to educate others.

There were people from all over the country competing. There were very diverse speeches from graziers hay producers and dairy producers.

Mohn's speech addressed

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Richard Hann knows the history and workings of the Pennsylvania Forage & Grassland Council.

For 34 years, Hann has been a vital part in the organization, handling the finances and acting as chief coordinator of events board meetings and membership matters. He has served as secretary treasurer since 1968. In addition to those responsibilities, he assumed a new executive director post in 2000.

Hann recently reflected on PFGC's history along with changes in agriculture and forage management that have occurred through the years.

First formed in 1960 as the Pennsylvania Grassland Council (PGC), the organization became affiliated with American Grassland Council in 1963. The name was changed to Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council in 1978 to more fully recognize its role in the state's forage livestock industry.

Dr. John Baylor, then a Penn State Extension Forage Specialist, was the Council's first president and Charles Wolgemuth, general manager of Milton Hershey Farms

"WAFFLE SLAT" Syri-Con Corporation

"We would use slats again if doing it all over!"

Harold Keeney; David, Nancy & Mark

Our original plan was to install scrapers. But after 10 minutes in a slatted barn in Somerset County, we changed our minds. Some people stay away from slats because of the initial cost, but that extra cost is made up for in the first couple years.

The one thing I like the most about slats is that there is no expense. I don't have any scrapers or drive units to maintain. I don't have to run scrapers every day or haul manure like we did in our previous tie stall barn. The cows' foot health has been a lot better, and the cows stay much cleaner. Our milk production is up and the somatic cell count has gone down. I give at least some of the credit to the slats because with less moisture on the floor, there is less bacteria.

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State
August 19, 2002

Farm Milk Price Gets Squeezed

- All-milk price hits season low.
- Feed prices getting higher.
- Cow numbers growing.

Last week's milk production report confirmed what the market already knew, that the milk supply was growing. USDA's milk production report indicated that the number of cows on farms in 20 select states was up from 7.745 million head in January to 7.786 million head in July. In fact, July saw growth of 7,000 head. Production per cow was also higher.

This was bad news for the dairy markets, which reacted swiftly. Block cheese prices in Chicago fell from $1.1625 per pound on Monday, Aug. 12 to $1.13 per pound by Friday, Aug. 16. In addition, the futures markets showed additional weakness. As of Aug. 16, 2002, the Class III futures at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange showed an August price of $9.50 per CWT, a September price of $10.15 per CWT, and an October-December price of $10.50-$11 per CWT.

On top of all this gloom is a steady rise in grain, meal, and alfalfa hay prices. A severe drought in Canada and some parts of the U.S. Cornbelt are causing higher feed prices. At the Chicago Board of Trade, December corn rose from $2.20 per bushel earlier this year to $2.85 per bushel. November soybean futures rose from $4.62 per bushel earlier in the spring to close to $5.75 per bushel. And hay prices have nowhere to go but higher. Canada will likely keep more of their limited supplies of hay to feed their withering herds.

All of this is resulting in a significant drop in the milk-feed price ratio. That index, which measures the milk price relative to the cost of feed, fell from 3.0 in January 2002 and is forecasted to fall all the way to 2.0 by September. The all-milk price, which fell from $13.40 per CWT in January to $11.20 per CWT in July, is only expected to rise moderately the rest of the year, reaching $12.22 per CWT by December. Thus this slight gain will be offset by higher feed costs.

So why are cow numbers increasing when milk prices are falling to support levels? That is the big question. Cow numbers in July grew in 10 of 20 states. As a result, milk production grew 2.3 percent in these 20 select states in July. Milk production grew 15.6 percent in New Mexico, 6.3 percent in California, 5.6 percent in Idaho, 4.9 percent in Ohio, and 4.4 percent in New York.

Milk prices will likely not improve significantly until cow numbers stabilize and go down.

High Feed, Low Milk Prices Could Mean It's Time For Farm Bill

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Plain sect farmers who don't want to accept government money can at least reap the benefits of the new Farm Bill, with a built-in dairy support program that covers market losses when milk prices drop.

Simply put, all they need to do is assign a payment to the milk cooperative through an agent. The agent will accept the money into the co-op, which could go a long way toward taking care of business debts.

That was the message delivered by Ken Bailey, Penn State professor of agricultural economics, dairy marketing and policy, Wednesday morning at Ag Progress Days.

Bailey, who writes a weekly column on page A16 of Lancaster Farming, outlined the provisions of the Farm Bill at the House Agriculture Committee Informational Meeting.

This year, perhaps more than ever before, the commodity support prices come in handy as feed prices continue to spiral upward and milk prices drop like lead.

Bailey spoke about criticism of the Farm Bill. He was on a recent trip to Canada, and even though their program is almost the same as ours, Lyle Vanclief, Canadian ag minister, said, "I am appalled, I am disgusted, I am disappointed by the protectionist policy of the United States," Bailey quoted.

Bailey also quoted U.S. Ag Secretary Ann Veneman, who noted in a USDA news release that "The WTO (World Trade Organization) permits the United States to spend $19.1 billion annually for certain types of farm program support. This compares to $31 billion for Japan and $62 billion for the EU (European Union)."

Comparatively, the U.S. remains conservative in its support programs, relying on market strength and farm manager resourcefulness to keep agriculture strong.

Bailey noted the two big issues with the Farm Bill, costing U.S. taxpayers $170 billion within six years, will be the extension of the price support program and a special National Dairy Market Loss program. (The Farm Bill is not just commodity and grain supports, but includes conservation, trade and market development, rural development, and nutrition.) The market loss program provides a Class I floor milk price of $16.94 per CWT for Boston prices and pays the difference on 45 percent of the milk produced. The limit is 2.4 million pounds per farm per year, which is a farm with 133 cows.

A special transition payment will include the months staring with December 2001 up until now. Producers will get $1.04 per CWT for milk produced. "That's a lot of money," Bailey said. That makes up 88 percent of the milk produced in Pennsylvania. FSA noted payment won't be until sometime in October.

The bill is targeted to small producers. But in a volatile market, many times the dairy industry has faced support prices.

Bailey doesn't believe that with the good support price, "it will not create an avalanche of milk," he told about 45 legislators and agri-industry representatives at the meeting.

The dairy industry itself is dealing with issues such as escalating feed costs, even though California continues its major herd expansion. But he believes the expansion out west will stop soon.

Right now the support price will come in handy, especially since the price stands already at least $2.70 per CWT behind last year. It's important for agents and USDA/FSA representatives to work with producers now to "protect against rapidly falling prices."

Ken Bailey, Penn State professor of agricultural economics, dairy marketing and policy, spoke Wednesday morning at Ag Progress Days.

Some of the co-ops have great forward contracting processes, which perhaps are being underutilized by producers. Land O'Lakes, Dairy Farmers of America, and Dairylea have forward contracting, which can be crucial for dairy producers.

"You could have locked in at $13.50 per CWT in April" for class milk prices, said Bailey.

Other speakers included Dr. Charles Abdalla, Penn State associate professor of agricultural and environmental economics, natural resource economics and policy, and Alyssa Dodd, extension associate, Penn State, on Farm Bill conservation and waste management provisions. Richard Pallman, executive director, Pennsylvania office, Farm Service Agency, also spoke.

Pallman noted the process of allocating payments is not a simple one. It's simply one "tool that's available to producers," he said.

Answers to questions about the new Farm Bill were provided via Penn State Tuesday at Ag Progress Days. Those who visited the Ag Alumni Pavilion in Rockspring could speak with, from left, Sarah Roth, Penn State extension associate; Susan Rossman, Web development; or David Blandford, Penn State Department of AE&RS. Payments from the Bill are expected to start in mid-October, according to USDA/FSA, who also had representatives on hand. Photo by Andy Andrews, editor

Horses The Focus At Ag Progress' 'Equine Experience'

Icelandic horses were one of the breed demonstrations that were conducted at "The Equine Experience."

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Visitors who wound their way through the busyness of Ag Progress Days to the Horse Arena were educated about several unique horse breeds, treated to horse performances, and taught about ownership and management of the equine animal.

Dubbed "The Equine Experience," the program featured the American Quarter Horse Association's (AQHA) 4aHORSE Test Ride, which allowed the public to ride horses throughout the duration of Ag Progress Days.

Another highlight of The Equine Experience was the clinics conducted outside of the arena. Program topics included nutrition, management, equine dentistry, preventative veterinary care, selection of the proper horse, and horse behavior.

The program was conducted by Penn State, AQHA, the Pennsylvania Quarter Horse Association (PQHA) and other breed and industry groups.

Tuesday's events featured Friesian, Haflinger, Icelandic and other breed clinics, a working sheep dog demonstration, and performances by the Keystone Dressage and Combined Training Drill Team and the Pennsylvania State Police Mounted Patrol. Lebanon Marks 6,000 Acres Preserved

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Lebanon celebrated the preservation of 6,000 acres of farmland this week.

Approximately 60 officials and farm families gathered for a ceremony at the E. Faye Bowman farm. The 105-acre farm is the 55th agricultural conservation easement purchased or donated in the county. There is a waiting list of 50 more farms — a total of 6,665 acres — waiting to be preserved.

Timothy Sheffey, Ag Preservation chairperson, opened the event by giving the deed of easement to finalize the transaction to Bowman for her signature.

"Without any question, Lebanon County is making history," said Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes. "Without the preservation of farms such as the Bowman's farm, Pennsylvania couldn't be recognized as having the nation's best farmland preservation program," he said.

"One of America's great strategic strengths is the ability to produce our own food and fiber, and we need citizens willing to preserve that," said Hayes.

"It's a team effort. It's not just dependent upon farm families but also the preserve board and lawmakers," he said. "Lots of times we hear about budgets being enacted in Harrisburg, but we don't talk about the good things that are happening in appropriations."

Bowman was presented with checks from local and state sources during the ceremony.

Robin Heard, USDA NRCS state conservationist, thanked the Bowmans for the significant donation of preserving their farm. The Bowmans, she said, are conservation-minded in other ways, as the land is no-tilled, the stream is fenced in, and buffers are planted on the property, which the Bowmans rent out for crop production.

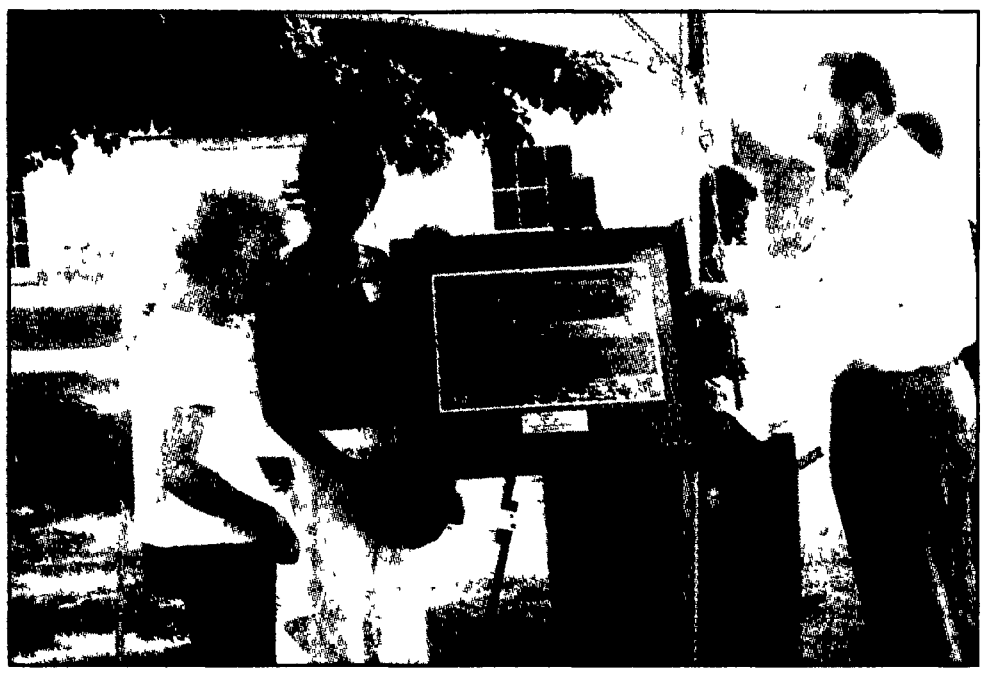
"They are not just producing food and fiber but clean air and water," she said.

Sue Bowman, daughter of E. Faye Bowman, spoke on behalf of the family. "This is a very exciting and long-awaited day for us," she said. The event celebrated not only the preservation of land but also "history and a way of life," she said. The Bowmans began the preservation process in spring 1999.

"Before the farm family becomes more of an endangered species than it already is, we need to acknowledge that there are more important things for the quality of life than money," he said.

According to Commissioner William Carpenter, Lebanon County ranks number nine in the state — out of 67 counties — in farmland preservation rate.

For more information on the farmland preservation program call (717) 272-3908 ext. 4.



E. Faye and Sue Bowman accept an aerial photograph of the newly-preserved Bowman farm from Timothy Sheffey, Ag Preservation chairperson.

Long, Tracy Tops In Their Last Elizabethtown Fair Sheep Show

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — After seven hours of evaluating about 200 sheep, judge Tim Hall had picked his favorites.

In their last year of Elizabethtown Fair Sheep Show competition, both Amy Long and John Tracy emerged from the crowd in the market lamb show.

Amy Long and John Tracy, in their last year of competition as 4-H'ers, took home top honors from the large sheep show at Elizabethtown Fair. John won grand champion in the nonselling division and Amy won grand champion market lamb in the selling division before receiving the supreme champion market lamb placing. They are joined by Elizabethtown Fair queen Kathy Musser.

Hall finally named Amy's market lamb — the grand champion of the selling division — as supreme champion market lamb. John's lamb was grand champion in the nonselling division.

In addition, Stephanie Kauffman's Southdown ewe — "a complete individual," said Hall — rose to the top of the breeding sheep show.

After winning the title, Amy excitedly called her mother, at home doing the evening milking, to tell her the results of the sheep show.

She purchased the lamb from Bill and Blaine Brown, Hershey.

Amy, 19, last year's Elizabethtown Fair queen, is in her sophomore year at Harrisburg Area Community College. She is studying business administration.

John's homebred lamb balanced muscle and frame and was a complete package, according to Hall. John, 17, from Elizabethtown, brought to the fair seven sheep — all homebreds — in combination with his father. A senior at Elizabethtown High School, John has been showing sheep since he was seven years old.

The family owns a 40-acre operation and breeds, raises, and sells beef, sheep, and goat club projects. John plans to take the lamb to Manheim to sell there, and then move onto Farm Show competition.

Stephanie Kauffman's breeding sheep show win is a repeat performance of two years ago, when another of her Southdowns won supreme champion breeding sheep at the fair.

Stephanie purchased "Contrary," which she says is aptly named ("she is extremely contrary," said Stephanie), this summer. Her grandparents, George and Lorraine Lewis, house Stephanie's 40-head flock on their Mount Joy farm.

The family began breeding and showing Southdowns because when Stephanie began showing she was too petite to handle the Hampshires her mother had shown. Consequently they purchased a Southdown and have been building the flock since then.

Besides 4-H Roundup and Elizabethtown Fair, Stephanie plans to show at Manheim and York fairs, besides the Farm Show.

Tim Hall, Dalmatia, Northumberland County, judged the show. Hall works as a flock consultant for Lauden Acres Dorsets, a 150-brood ewe operation. In addition, he judges nine county shows a year in Pennsylvania and Ohio, and this year is traveling to the Virginia State Fair.

The judge complimented the exhibitors for "Their attention to me and their cooperation with each other."

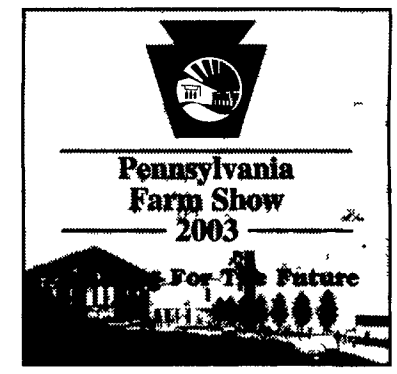
2002 Dairy Of Distinction Faces

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania Dairy of Distinction families gathered for a special recognition ceremony at Ag Progress Days Tuesday. A total of 31 farms from across the state were honored this year for maintaining farms that foster a positive image of the dairy industry.



OPEN HOUSE
August 29, 2002 10:00 AM-3:00 PM

Congratulations to the Harlan Martin and Charlie High families, owners and operators of Seven Stars Dairy, and the completion of their new 22 Stall Swing Parlor and 250 cow freestall barn.

An Open House is being held on the 29th of August 2002 from 10:00 am-3:00pm. All are invited to come and see a dairy operation that will be a fine example of the practical and profitable side of dairying that is attainable by all when considering a new dairy facility.
Directions: Rt. 322 to Thompsontown Exit Rt. 333. Go North on Rt. 333 to Rt. 235. Turn right on Rt. 235, travel approx. 6 miles to SR 2017. Turn left and the new dairy facility will be on your right. Look for the signs.

DROUGHT-STRESSED CORN AND EMERGENCY FEED CROPS

Glenn A. Shirk
Extension Dairy Agent
Lancaster County
Robert J. Anderson
Extension Agronomy Agent
Lancaster County

Some farmers are asking, "Is it worth chopping my corn field?"

Several things to consider are:

- Do you need it as feed, and will it have sufficient feed value?
- Is it worth enough to justify the cost of harvesting?
- Will you have time to seed an emergency feed crop after the corn is harvested?

What are your replanting options following corn? This will depend on the herbicide program used for corn. Generally, sorghum-sudan grass may be the most viable option if planted by early August. Small grains, annual ryegrass or soybeans, in some situations, are options for seedings later in the year, but dry weather may result in high atrazine carryover which will damage more sensitive crops such as oats and soybeans.

Of the small grains, rye has the most tolerance to atrazine. Check herbicide labels for replanting restrictions. For example, small grain crops are not registered to be cropped until the year after application of atrazine. If corn fields are unsatisfactory for planting fall forage crops, small grain or soybean stubble fields could be seeded to a fall small grain or annual ryegrass.

Spring grains, such as oats, can provide fall growth, but will likely be killed by frost. Fall small grains or annual ryegrass, depending on soil moisture conditions and date of planting, might be able to provide some fall harvest, as well as winter cover and a spring harvest.

Will you have enough silage? When determining how much silage to "put up," remember that dry silage does not pack well. In other words, it feeds out faster, and suddenly you might find yourself out of silage before next year's harvest season. So, in these situations, consider storing additional silage.

How much is drought-stressed silage worth? One of the main determinants of price is supply and demand. The quality and value of corn can vary a lot depending in part upon the degree of drought stress. Short stalks that are well eared can have a higher grain-to-stalk ratio and thus might have more feed value. Barren stalks can also have fairly good feed value because some of the nutrients that normally would have moved into the ear, are now retained in the stalk.

As shown in Tables 1 and 2, droughty corn usually tests lower in NEL and starch, but can test higher in protein, NDF, some of the minerals and nitrates. The fiber can be more digestible, perhaps because of lower lignin levels.

In one recent scenario of prices, drought-stunted corn with few ears was worth about 91 percent of normal silage, while drought stressed corn with no ears was worth 66 percent of the value of normal corn silage. Spoilage can also be a factor when silages are too dry to pack well and undergo a normal fermentation. Also, consider harvesting and hauling costs, because harvesting costs increase when it becomes necessary to cover more acres in order to harvest a given amount of tonnage.

Lancaster Conducts 4-H Roundup

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster County conducted its 4-H fair recently at the Elizabethtown Fairgrounds.

There were approximately 215 exhibitors, who exhibited 387 animals, which included dairy beef, sheep, goats, swine, and beef cattle.

The fair began Wednesday night with the weigh-in of dairy beef calves. Thursday began with the Dairy Beef Show, which was judged by John Bowman from Marietta.

C.J. Furlong judged showmanship. Among the winners was Jenna Hershberger, 11, Quarryville, who exhibited the supreme champion dairy beef calf. Lori Peters, 16, of Manheim, owned the reserve supreme champion dairy beef calf.

Mylin Good, Manheim, bought the calf on Friday night at the livestock sale. Lori Peters was also awarded the champion showmanship award, which is a $100 savings bond, which she will receive at the livestock banquet in February. Amber Kiser exhibited the reserve champion selling dairy beef, and the reserve champion nonselling dairy beef was owned by Rachel Keener.

Thursday afternoon was concluded with Scott Myers, judge, from Bedford selecting the champion and reserve champion market lambs. Kelsey Binkley, 11, from Conestoga owned and showed the champion market lamb along with the supreme champion ewe. Kelsey's supreme champion ewe, Peak-A-Boo was a spring born Dorset ewe lamb which was born at her farm. Reserve champion market lamb and champion showmanship honors went to Tiffany Dean, 15, Strasburg. Joelynn Donough exhibited the supreme champion bred and owned market lamb. Reserve champion showmanship award went to Ryan Donough, and Miriam Henry was awarded champion novice showman, an award that goes to the outstanding first year showman.

The hog show kicked off Friday morning beginning with showmanship judged by Dave Hosterman, the Penn State Swine Herdsman. Showmanship winners included Holly Hoover, Champion Showman, and Elizabeth Bard, reserve champion showman. Other division winners included Joelynn Donough, Urloni Fox and Marlina Kreider. Jonathan Rupert, 14, from Ephrata owned and exhibited the grand champion market hog, which was bought by Pfautz's Show Pigs at the sale later that night. Ryan Donough, 18, Manheim showed the reserve champion market hog.

Rachel Keener, 16, Mount Joy exhibited the supreme champion market goat that was sold to New Holland Sales Stables. Reserve supreme champion market goat was owned and exhibited by Brian Geib, 15, of Manheim. Brittany Becker, 12, Ephrata led the champion and reserve champion nonselling market goats. Champion showman went to Amanda Grube, 16, Elizabethtown and reserve showman honors went to Jessica Esh, 15, Ephrata. Champion doe honors went to Kyle Ream, 13, of Washington Boro.

The Fair concluded on Saturday with the Lancaster County 4-H Red Rose Beef Show. The judge for the day was Colby Ferguson from Thurmont, MD. Supreme champion Heifer award went to Katie Nolt, 13, New Holland. Katie was also champion showman and will receive $1,000.00 from the Intelligencer Journal, toward the purchase of a Farm Show Steer. Reserve champion heifer and the reserve champion steer were both owned and exhibited by Katrina Frey, 12, Quarryville. The grand champion steer award went to Tiffany Dean, 15, of Strasburg. The reserve champion showman award is $300 toward the purchase of a Fair Steer, sponsored by Lancaster Farming. This award was given to Nicole Hess, 16, Mount Joy.

Katie Nolt had supreme champion heifer with Triple N Elizabeth Alice, an Angus heifer. Colby Ferguson was the Judge.

Persistent Drought Deepens

tend to be fields with heavier soils that were also in the path of timely rain showers. Voigt said he estimated 180-200 bushel yields for several Lebanon County fields.

Alfalfa yields are also variable. There were some "good" fourth cuttings harvested in the area, while some stands only reached 6-8 inches, Voigt said.

Most graziers have taken their livestock off pasture, but again there are exceptions. Titus Martin, dairyman from Franklin County, reported Tuesday that his Holsteins were still getting about 50 percent of their dry matter feed requirements from pasture. A lot of the credit goes to the "highly productive soil" in his paddocks, Martin said.

A few livestock producers are having water hauled from local fire companies to ensure a supply for their animals.

Charlie Bomgardner, Annville, Lebanon County, said he's having about 3,000 gallons a week hauled for the 200 head of hogs he's finishing.

When the hogs came to the farm three months ago, Bomgardner said he was concerned about the water supply.

"We normally put 300 (hogs) in, but this time we decided to put in 200," Bomgardner said.

Even with the smaller group, he noticed within two weeks that the water lines were losing pressure, he said.

Two wells — 160 and 650 feet deep — supply water on the farm. The deeper well was drilled just last fall and produces about 1½ gallons per minute, Bomgardner said.

The water lines from each well have safety switches that cut off the water flow when pressure drops below a certain level.

Pride, Hope Central To Outgoing, Potential Incoming Pa. Governors

In a way, Schweiker spoke about accomplishments, hope, and of course, gave a going-away speech that left many standing and clapping.

When the water crashed into the Somerset County mine in July, Schweiker saw hope in the "might of those miners," he said. "The hardy, determined people that they are, just like you. And those nine people never gave up.

"It's that grit and that determination and that never-say-die attitude, whether you're 240 feet below the earth's surface or making your living in the soil of God's green earth in Pennsylvania at the top. It's a blessing. They were blessed by the good Lord and the hard work of 200 people that made up that rescue team. And I realized then, and it's worth mentioning now . . . as they brought hose nine people up, we are a successful people, too.

"You know, there are countries and societies that would die for that ethic, die to be raised that way, they would fight for the opportunity to enjoy that atmosphere, that running room of behaving that way, being entrepreneurial, that we've got in the U.S.A."

Schweiker commented on the work he's done in the eight years in office.

"I wouldn't be doing my job, friends, if I didn't look you in the eye in light of this tremendous eight-year experience, and watching those nine men come up, to know that Pennsylvania has a built-in advantage, the way we were raised, a system nurtured in our children. It's a privilege. I've always felt it, but never so strongly than in my eight years as lieutenant governor and governor."

Schweiker noted the importance his administration has put on looking out for "number one" — the state's agriculture industry.

"Yours is our predominant industry," he said. "In 2002, we will take the impressive step of preserving the two-thousand-and-second farm in counties with ag preservation. And your Pennsylvania remains the number one preserved state in the Union.

"That's an accomplishment and that's to your credit."

Schweiker has visited Poland, Australia, and Japan, he said, and relayed the importance of the administration's agricultural directive, "Products For the Planet." For the first time in 2001, the state reached more than $1 billion in ag exports, he noted.

Schweiker also spoke glowingly about the $90 million spent on new Farm Show Complex construction.

Visitors to the 2003 Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg "will see one of the finest, most attractive facilities that any state can offer to its farming and horse-loving community," said Schweiker.

He also noted the stress caused by the drought.

"I must acknowledge the concern that I feel for this drought, ravishing as it has been and can be," he said. Even in the northwestern part of the state, grape growers have been devastated. Corn crops in the midstate are bleak.

"We're losing a good deal," he said. He has asked for federal disaster money, and waits for an answer. "We hope it's a positive answer, we hope it's a supportive answer. Because we've got to get some financial help to avert the financial impact of those losses to farmers."

The state, the governor noted, is looking at a potential 50 percent crop loss, and it could be a lot higher. "I'm sure you can't walk too far here at Ag Progress Days to hear about that concern."

About $2 million remains in the budget for crop insurance assistance, he noted.

Taking care of the state's number one industry remains key.

"It's our job. It's my job," he said. "This will be the last time I stand here as your governor for these wonderful ag days."

For all the work, "I'm proud of that," he said.

At the luncheon, candidates for governor shared the podium. The text of their comments was included in the following information from press releases.

Rendell Reviews Agenda For Rural Pennsylvania

Democratic gubernatorial nominee Ed Rendell reviewed the "Rendell Plan for Pennsylvania's Rural Communities" during a news conference Wednesday afternoon at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Center in Rockspring.

The "Rendell Plan for Pennsylvania's Rural Communities" recognizes that while many of the concerns of families in our rural and agricultural communities are the same as the families in our biggest cities — steady, high wage jobs, good schools, safe streets and access to affordable, quality health-care — ensuring their ability to survive and thrive will take more than recognizing their unique attributes.

"The Rendell Plan for Pennsylvania's Rural Communities" builds upon and expands the policies Rendell announced during the primary to revitalize mid-sized and smaller communities, reform our education system and increase access to and affordability of health care. Among other things, the plan also:

• Supports the agricultural industry: Agriculture remains Pennsylvania's single largest industry and as Governor, Ed Rendell will support this important sector by protecting valuable farmland, promoting profitability for all farms, expand domestic and international markets for Pennsylvania agricultural products, emphasize animal health care services, and train the next generation of Pennsylvania farmers.

• Encourages development of the heritage and "eco-tourism" industries. As he did as Philadelphia's mayor, Ed Rendell will support the continued growth and health of Pennsylvania's tourism industry.

Rendell's Proposals

As Governor, Ed Rendell noted he plans to:

• Protect valuable farmland. Ed Rendell will work to bring more dedicated funding for the purchase of conservation easements. He will pursue more flexible funding mechanisms for easement purchases, such as a plan to pay farmers by installments over 30 years rather than a lump sum. He will work with the federal government to promote and expand the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program, allowing farmers to preserve their land for farming and for the enhancement of the commonwealth's environment.

As Governor, Rendell will direct commonwealth agencies to adhere to Executive Order 1997-6, regarding agricultural land preservation policy. In 1999, the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation (PennDOT) had to be sued to prevent the agency from building a highway interchange without a hearing before the Agricultural Lands Condemnation Approval Board. That will not happen with Ed Rendell as governor.

• Promote profitability for all farms. Agriculture in Pennsylvania is very diverse. Mushroom farms of Kennett Square, grape growers in Erie County, greenwrap tomatoes in Lackawanna County, tobacco in Lancaster County, poultry and hogs in the southeast, and dairy farms everywhere. The commonwealth ranks among the top five in the nation in the production of mushrooms, Christmas trees, milk and apples, which in recent years has led to exports of more than $1 billion of agriculture products worldwide.

As Governor, Ed Rendell will open important economic development tools to production agriculture, allowing access to special funds like the Small Business First Fund. Today, Pennsylvania spends some $500 million on economic development programs, yet most of those dollars are closed to the largest industry in this state: agriculture. Ed Rendell will invest economic development dollars in agriculture.

Modern farming is dependent on expensive equipment. This is true of dairy farming, the state's principal agriculture enterprise. A dairy farm must have a herd of at least 200 to 300 cows to be viable with an investment of thousands of dollars per stall for efficient production with robotic milkers, automatic washers and so forth. Yet, the Commonwealth's Machinery Equipment and Loan Fund is closed to farmers. Ed Rendell supports opening this program to farmers.

• Protecting our environment without limiting the ability to farm. Ed Rendell believes that Pennsylvania can have a sound and safe environment without harming the productivity and profitability of our farms. Protect the quality and quantity of our water without regulations that restrict a farmer's ability to achieve both.

For example, concentrated animal feeding operations (CAFOs) can present a danger to the quality of our water with manure runoff and seepage into groundwater if not properly managed. But rather than restrict a CAFO quantity of run-off (total maximum daily load) which could have serious economic consequences for farmers, Ed Rendell will help make state dollars available in low interest loans so farmers can construct buffer zones or purchase manure digesters or any other technology which would reduce pollution. Legislation has authorized funding for proper manure management but no dollars have been budgeted. Ed Rendell will change that.

• Expand marketing opportunities. Pennsylvania's farmers live within one day's drive of half the nation's population, uniquely positioned near large markets. Greater advantages can be taken of this situation.

For years, Philadelphia has been home to a marketing collaboration known as "The Book and the Cook." It is a showcase for world renowned chefs, fine restaurants, and quality agricultural products from Pennsylvania. Philadelphia's Reading Terminal Market features "The Pennsylvania Store," a retail facility dealing exclusively in Pennsylvania agricultural products. Statewide, there's a "Simply Delicious" program coordinated by the Agriculture Department to provide a domestic market for Pennsylvania grown fruits and vegetables. Currently, 900 growers and 500 retailers are involved.

Pennsylvania's agricultural exports worldwide are valued at $1 billion and involve mainly mushrooms, Christmas trees, dairy products and apples. The department attends and hosts countless international trade shows to encourage expanded exports. It's current budget for promotions is $1.379 million.

As Governor, Ed Rendell will direct the Agriculture Department to expand these and other marketing initiatives. He will also encourage new programs to link growers and consumers directly, returning more of the food dollar to the producer, while improving the health and nutrition of the consumer. And he will seek to expand current emergency food programs in the commonwealth with dual benefit of alleviating hunger and widening the distribution of Pennsylvania produce. He will also help Pennsylvania farmers take better advantage of marketing opportunities abroad by surveying foreign demand for Pennsylvania products and promoting our products accordingly.

Ed Rendell will also make state government an exclusive market for Pennsylvania commodities by issuing an executive order requiring commonwealth agencies and institutions to buy home-grown produce first.

• Promote additional job development in agricultural areas. Some 70 percent of Pennsylvania's farm families derive more than 50 percent of their income from off farm employment. They are hungry for job opportunities that actually would help them remain on their farms. To this end, Ed Rendell supports proposals to establish development zones in agricultural areas with a new bureau in the Agriculture Department to oversee such a program. It would be similar to current tax free development zones in economically distressed areas. The moratorium on local and state taxes in agricultural areas would attract new processing and agricultural manufacturing jobs.

• Emphasize animal health care services. As a dairy farming state, Pennsylvania must rely on first rate animal health care services. The foreign threat to our livestock in recent years of Foot and Mouth disease and Mad Cow disease and periodic epidemics of avian influenza and the West Nile virus make it essential for the commonwealth to maintain adequate diagnostic facilities. Ed Rendell advocates continued support for the state Agriculture Department's Harrisburg laboratory, the Penn State University laboratory at State College, the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine, and the New Bolton Center laboratory in Chester County. The vet school is the only one in Pennsylvania and one of only three in the nation. It has more than 6,000 of its graduates practicing throughout the U.S.

• Train the next generation of Pennsylvania Farmers. The average Pennsylvania farmer is over 50. We must attract and invest in a new generation of farmers if we are to remain a preeminent agricultural state. And there's a world of opportunity in related agricultural fields — veterinarians, agriculture teachers, researchers, food retailers and so forth. It's a matter of encouraging young people to take advantage of these opportunities. To that end, Ed Rendell will expand and increase the Agriculture Loan Forgiveness Program, which helps young students offset the high costs of getting a college degree in agriculture or veterinary medicine; restore funding for FFA and 4-H chapters across Pennsylvania. This program provides operating and capital improvement grants to 4-H and FFA groups to help with projects; and support agriculture in the classroom initiatives. Perhaps more than any other industry in the state, agriculture's future depends on the appreciation and understanding of the nonfarm public. Teaching agriculture in the classroom can foster that understanding.

Mike Fisher Details His Farm Policy During Ag Progress Days

On Wednesday, Republican gubernatorial nominee Mike Fisher highlighted his policy for agriculture — Pennsylvania's largest industry — during Penn State's Ag Progress Days.

"Agriculture remains our state's largest industry," said Fisher, "generating more than $45 billion annually and creating jobs for more than a million Pennsylvania workers. The continuing success of this industry is owed directly to the men and women who have assumed responsibility and demonstrated hard work in their daily lives."

Fisher praised the Ridge/Schweiker Administrations and the Republican General Assembly, who worked together to pass more than 70 pieces of legislation to help farmers. "I want to build on the success of their administrations, but the job is not done," said Fisher. "We still have a lot of work to do to help keep agriculture our number one industry and to preserve Pennsylvania's position as an agricultural leader for our country and the world."

Fisher explained that dairy industry is the leading segment of agriculture in the commonwealth. Pennsylvania ranks fourth among all states in milk production, third in butter and ice cream production and sixth in the production of cheese. He added that beyond the state's myriad of dairy farms is a network of other related businesses, including milk haulers, inspectors, 27 dairy processors and 44 manufacturing plants that all contribute to our farm economy.

"As governor," Fisher said, "I will encourage family farms, aggressively market our farm and food commodities, preserve our prime agricultural lands and keep our farmers farming."

While dairy farming may be the most familiar section of Pennsylvania's farm economy, Fisher went on to say that there are many other forms of agriculture equally important to the state. "We are a 'top 10' producer of red meat, eggs, chickens, turkeys, trout, apples, grapes, pears, peaches, tart cherries, sweet cherries, tomatoes, snap beans, strawberries, sweet corn, rye, oats and silage corn, mushrooms, maple syrup, Christmas trees and flower crops," said Fisher, "which serves as a testament to the diversity and productivity of our farm economy."

Fisher stressed that success for any of Pennsylvania's wide variety of farm products can be fostered by a strong marketing plan. His agricultural plan will use the resources of the commonwealth and the private sector in partnership to strengthen the state's number one industry. Fisher pledged to ensure that the Department of Agriculture continues to assist farmers in finding niche markets for the hundreds of specialty crops grown here, and seeking new opportunities for food processing and value added products.

Fisher also said Pennsylvania's Farmland Preservation program has been recognized for being the most successful in the nation, but more can be done. "As governor," Fisher said, "I will continue to ensure that we preserve our open space and remain a leader in the nation in farmland preservation."

Fisher added that water is equally essential to our farm community because without it there

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — A lamb shown by Amy Long of Hershey was named supreme market animal and a Mini Lop rabbit doe shown by Julie Whitehaus of Hummelstown was selected as the supreme breeding animal at the Elizabethtown Fair Thursday evening.

The Elizabethtown Fair is unique in pitting the entire field of champion show animals against each other in both market and breeding classes to determine overall supreme champions.

Whitehaus, 9, said she hadn't expected her rabbit to win over such formidable opponents as the champion dairy cow and beef heifer.

"I was really surprised," she said.

The 1-year-old doe is owned by Julie's sister Tori, 15.

The Whitehaus sisters participate in a variety of 4-H projects on the 5-acre homestead owned by their parents Thomas and Lori Jo Whitehaus.

Amy Long's 105-pound supreme lamb went on to bring $800 at the Sale of Champions. The buyer was Engle Publishing of Mount Joy.

Thursday also featured the Elizabethtown Dairy Show. Supreme champion cow went to a senior 3-year-old Jersey shown by Heath Spatz, 12, of Fredericksburg.

can be no farming and no agribusiness. He promised to support programs that ensure farmers and agribusinesses continue to have access to this most precious commodity. He called for any statewide water resources act to take into account the needs of Pennsylvania's farmers and agriculture industry and the critical groundwater recharge that farmland provides for all water users.

"You are the stewards of our land and water resources," he said. "State government must continue efforts to work hand in hand with our farm community to protect these most critical natural resources."

Fisher said farmers have already demonstrated their willingness to work to improve the environment, and notably water quality. "As governor," he said, "I will work with the agribusiness community to see that environmental protection programs are reasonable, based on sound science, and are developed with the input of the agricultural community."

The Fisher/Earll Administration will carefully consider the impact of regulatory and administrative actions to minimize their impact on farmland and farming practices. "I will protect your right to farm, and ensure that new farm technology can be integrated into farm operations without the threat of legal action by new neighbors," Fisher said.

Fisher said that to be successful in the high-risk business of producing food and fiber, Pennsylvania farmers must take full advantage of all the business tools available to them. As part of the assistance provided to farmers following the 1999 statewide drought, the state provided funds to encourage farmers to buy crop insurance.

"This was a phenomenally successful incentive program," said Fisher. "The number of policies held by farmers has tripled and the enrolled acreage has increased by nearly 250 percent, providing $160 million dollars of coverage statewide. As your governor, I pledge to continue to support direct funding to farmers as an incentive to utilize this and other key risk management tools."

Fisher made it clear that he understands farmers pay a disproportionate share of the cost of rural education because of the state's reliance on property taxes to fund schools.

"I am committed to real property tax reform," he said, "and a local school funding system that spends less on bureaucracy and puts more money into the classroom."

The public has become rightly concerned over the safety of our food supplies, Fisher said, adding that Pennsylvania has traditionally taken the lead in food safety programs and is acknowledged as a national leader.

"As your governor, we will continue this position, and I will insist that the state deal swiftly and decisively with those who might tamper with the food supply, either through introduction of biological agents or through destruction of crops and food products."

As governor, Mike Fisher said he will convene a bipartisan Commission on Agriculture, composed of leaders from our food and agricultural industries to hold hearings, conduct research, identify opportunities and challenges and to recommend future state policies and actions that ensure the commonwealth does all it can to help our number one industry meet those needs.

Fisher explained that four decades ago, Governor Bill Scranton established a Committee on Agriculture to make recommendations for its future growth and development. Much of the work of that committee is now law, and has provided support for the continued growth of Pennsylvania agriculture.

Fisher said Pennsylvania is fortunate to have three major colleges and universities providing research and hands-on college level training in the skills and trades that will support continued growth in our agricultural sector. He called for Penn State, the University of Pennsylvania's veterinary school and Delaware Valley College to expand research into high value crops, advanced technology and biotechnology, new products, and new applications.

Fisher also called on a renewed effort to preserve Pennsylvania's rural communities.

Fisher said that traditionally Pennsylvania's farm families have been excluded from many state programs that could provide economic assistance for business expansion. "In reality," he said, "our family farms are among the most successful small businesses in the commonwealth. As governor, I will work to make farms eligible for these economic development and small business grant and loan programs."

Keystone Opportunity Zones have brought new business to underdeveloped areas of the commonwealth. Fisher's plan will build upon that successful program with the creation of 12 new Entrepreneur Zones and direct development and expansion of farm and rural areas. The Entrepreneur Zones provide the unique combination of tax benefits that have made many of the KOZ's so successful, and add an essential component for rural zones of targeted funding for water, sewer, telecommunications, and transportation infrastructure improvements.

Mike Fisher said he is committed to streamlining our state government's permitting and regulatory compliance efforts. "Farming has been hindered in Pennsylvania by excess red tape for too long," he said.

He explained that costs of regulatory compliance and clearances of environmental permits are a major consideration for Pennsylvania's farmers. By expediting permit clearances and compliance assistance, Fisher said he will remove barriers to the progress of our farming industry. In addition, he will ensure that Pennsylvania has an experienced and accessible Ombudsman to assist with permit clearances and regulatory hurdles.

Fisher said improved education and workforce development are essential if we are to successfully transition to the future in rural Pennsylvania.

"We need a strong, well trained workforce if we are to attract business to rural Pennsylvania," said Fisher, "and we must work to bring enhanced educational opportunities to our rural areas."

As governor, Fisher said he will support state funding for the Agriculture in the Classroom program, and the expansion of funding for 4-H and FFA programs, which develop the future leaders of our rural communities. In addition, Fisher said his Administration will work with the state's colleges and universities to seek ways of providing increased funding for college and graduate level programs designed to train young Pennsylvanians in the fields that support the businesses of food and agriculture and to keep these young professionals in the commonwealth.

Fisher stressed that he will continue the private/public partnership that's been so successful for rural Pennsylvania, and will expand on the successes by empowering the Center for Local Government as a deputized office in the Department of Community and Economic Development.

"Our rural townships, boroughs and towns provide key business services, markets and jobs for the state's farm families," he said. "Well-maintained rural roads and bridges are essential for the movement of our food and farm commodities."

He pointed out that one weight-limited bridge can result in literally hundreds of extra miles of transportation of milk or other farm products each week. From 1992-2000, use of rural roads in Pennsylvania increased almost 25 percent, while 42 percent of the state's bridges are in need of repair.

As governor, Fisher said he will support an initiative to identify critical access roads and bridges, and will launch a program to improve those structures to support the local community.

Gold Cup Coming To Devon

DEVON (Chester Co.) — The 33rd annual Lincoln Americans Gold Cup, Sept. 12-15 at the Devon show grounds, features grand prix jumping, open speed, intermediate, amateur owner and pony jumper classes and side saddle classes.

The Gold Cup benefits the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine and its large animal facility, New Bolton Center and Main Line Rescue.

Entertainment includes exhibitions, a Celebrity Dog Show, pony rides, a children's art contest and face painting.

A number of antique dealers will exhibit their wares in the fair area, which features boutique shopping.

For ticket information, call (610) 964-9316 or (610) 964-0550.

The American Gold Cup weekend features two grand prix classes, the $35,000 Welcome Stake, a World Cup qualifier, Friday evening, and the $60,000 Gold Cup Sunday afternoon.

The American Gold Cup is one leg of the prestigious triple crown of show jumping, with the Invitational and the American Grand-prix Association Championship being the other two.

An exciting new class last year, pony jumpers, will be featured again Saturday evening, as well as the speed classic, which pits the winners from the junior, low and high amateur owner and open divisions against each other.

A side saddle class is also on the schedule for Saturday evening, and the Gold Cup is the Zone 2 Finals for side saddle riders.

Saturday is Children's

Persistent Drought Deepens Across Lower Susquehanna, Delaware Valleys

When the switch on one well cuts off, Bomgardner switches to the other well.

Having the water hauled in "kind of saves my wells a little bit," he said.

Bomgardner and his wife, Marlene, also raise about 40 dairy heifers and grows corn, soybeans, and wheat on the farm. They harvested the corn for silage last week.

"It wasn't as bad as I thought it might be," Bomgardner said of the silage yield. As far as his 35 acres of soybeans go, "they need a drink real bad."

Limited groundwater supplies are making the Bomgardners take a hard look at the future of their hog operation.

"We're going to either have to not raise pigs or dig another well," Bomgardner said.

Extension agent Craig said it will take a substantial, extended period of rain to alleviate drought conditions.

"You hate to ask for a hurricane," Craig said, "But we're at the point where a 2-inch rain won't do it."

David Hess, Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) secretary, along with the Susquehanna River Basin Commission and the Delaware River Basin Commission, this week urged Pennsylvanians to continue conserving water to reduce the demand on shrinking water supplies because of the worsening drought.

"With the flow in parts of the Susquehanna and Schuylkill rivers and many other tributaries declining to seasonal record-low levels, we are encouraging everyone to be extra careful in conserving water any way they can," Hess said. "Additionally, DEP has been in contact with numerous public-water suppliers to monitor the status of drinking water supplies across the commonwealth."

With groundwater also reaching record or near-record lows in some areas, Gov. Mark Schweiker extended the drought emergency on Aug. 9 in 14 counties across southcentral and southeastern Pennsylvania, and added seven counties to drought-watch status.

The 14 counties remaining in drought-emergency status are Adams, Bedford, Berks, Chester, Cumberland, Delaware, Franklin, Fulton, Lancaster, Lebanon, Lehigh, Northampton, Schuylkill and York. They should continue to follow mandatory water restrictions and reduce water use by 15 percent. Schweiker first declared a drought emergency on Feb. 12 for 24 counties in response to dangerously low groundwater levels. On May 8, the number of drought-emergency counties was down to 20. On June 14, the number of drought-emergency counties was dropped to 14.

"We're in the midst of the hottest, driest part of the summer, and there seems to be no relief in sight for the continued stresses on our water supplies and the environment in the lower Susquehanna region," said Paul Swartz, executive director of the Susquehanna River Basin Commission. "Given that a high percentage of the Susquehanna basin's homeowners, public-water suppliers, and industries rely on groundwater sources, we all need to be very mindful of this continuing problem."

The lack of rainfall frustrates many people, including those at Starr Pottery & Bronze Barn near Abottstown, Adams County. Photo by Dave Lefever

Better Weed Control

an annual rent for each acre. In the 20 Pennsylvania counties eligible for CREP funds, landowners receive an average of $96 per acre for rent, plus cost-share funds for establishing grasses or trees, Foose said.

Foose said that penalties can be imposed on landowners who fail to control plants that are on the state's list of noxious weeds. These include Canada thistle, multiflora rose, Johnsongrass, and shattercane, to name a few.

The FSA "usually (has) several cases every year" in which penalties are levied on CRP-enrolled landowners for noxious weed problems in Pennsylvania. No CREP landowners have been penalized to date, Foose said.

Scott Singer, Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) wildlife habitat specialist, works with CREP landowners in Columbia and Montour counties. He said warm-season grasses in particular can take a few years to get established, making the weeds more of a challenge in the meantime. There are also instances of shorter grasses used in CREP tree plantings where weeds are a problem, according to Singer.

"Every day I'm giving advice to landowners on how to control weeds," he said. "If you get those weeds in your field you have to control them."

Singer said he frequently recommends spot-spraying with "effective chemicals" that are "least harmful to wildlife habitat."

According to George Hubbard, director of the FSA office for Columbia and Montour counties, mowing in CREP fields is limited in order to protect wildlife habitat. Contracts specify that mowing must only occur in the period from July 16 - Aug. 31. Even then, landowners should show restraint in mowing, he said.

"If you go out on July 16 and mow everything down like a golf course, it's not going to be beneficial to wildlife," Hubbard said.

Most Canada thistles have already gone to seed by then, Hubbard said. To control the weeds, he recommended spot-spraying earlier in the season.

According to Singer, warm-season grasses remain established longer and will eventually provide better weed control than traditional cool-season grasses such as timothy or orchardgrass.

"I have to keep reassuring people that patience is the key," he said.

Hubbard also acknowledged that lack of rainfall has made it hard to establish grasses on CREP land this year.

Wissler and Carl Shaffer, vice president of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau and Columbia County crop farmer, however, said the weed control hasn't been good enough in some instances. The problem, particularly with the Canada thistle, started when CRP began in 1985, said Shaffer. He farms about 2,000 acres in the central Susquehanna area.

"We've constantly had to spot spray thistles over the years," he said. "It's a problem controlling them. The wind blows those seeds so far."

Shaffer said he has about four acres of "highly erodible" land enrolled in CREP. Wissler, who owns land in Montour County and farms a total of about 1,700 acres in the region, has no acreage enrolled in the program. Both farmers believe the government and landowners have to be more acountable in managing the program.

"Landowners are getting paid a substantial amount of money," Shaffer said. "There has to be more responsibility."

According to Wissler, noxious weeds on working farmlands are a different issue than those on CREP lands.

"I wouldn't say my farms are thistle-free," he said. "But I'm not being paid by the U.S. government."

CREP was designed to enhance the original CRP program — that's what the "E" in the name stands for. While CRP is funded entirely by the federal government, CREP programs receive matching state funds.

With a pool of resources from various agencies including the Pennsylvania Game Commission, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Chesapeake Bay Foundation, and Ducks Unlimited, CREP sharpens the focus on water quality and wildlife habitat improvement, especially for grassland birds such as the ringneck pheasant and certain songbirds.

According to Singer, there has been anecdotal evidence from landowners of increased numbers of some grassland birds since CREP began. "Personally, I've seen clutches of pheasants using the grassland habitat," he added.

However, the CREP program is still too young for the bird population data to be meaningful.

"It's really too early to give any kind of a conclusion," Singer said.

While gamebirds grab a lot of the spotlight in wildlife programs, much of CREP's habitat focus is on less visible birds, such as grassland sparrows, Singer said.

The length of a CREP contract depends on the specific practice adopted on the land, ranging from 10 to 15 years. After the contract expires the landowner can choose to resume farming it if he or she wishes.

While both CRP and CREP are aimed at setting aside "marginal lands" for conservation purposes, the CRP is in decline in Pennsylvania.

According to Foose, CRP acreage in the state has decreased from about 130,000 acres in the late 1980s to about 60,000 today.

"Here in Pennsylvania, that program wasn't really too effective," he said. CREP, however, has enrolled about 50,000 acres in Pennsylvania since it began in 1996.

Jay Wissler is concerned about these thistles that have gone to seed in a CREP-implemented riparian buffer near land he farms in Montour County.

"It has been really successful with meeting its goals," he said.

According to Foose, agencies partnering with CREP in the state would like to see the program expand to include 21 more counties and encompass the entire Chesapeake Bay watershed within Pennsylvania.

The 20 counties currently enrolled in the program are Adams, Bedford, Berks, Chester, Columbia, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Fulton, Juniata, Lancaster, Lebanon, Montour, Northumberland, Perry, Schuylkill, Snyder, Somerset, Union, and York.

Hubbard said that the counties of Columbia, Montour, Northumberland, and Schuylkill have the highest concentration of conservation program enrollment in the state.

About 12,000 acres are enrolled in CRP and CREP in Columbia County. Montour County has about 5,000. Acreage in both counties is almost evenly divided between CRP and CREP lands.

In the late 1980s, Columbia County peaked at about 16,000 idle cropland acres, evenly split between CRP lands and annual set-aside lands, Hubbard said.

In recent years, land set-aside programs have increasingly shifted focus to water quality and wildlife habitat. Earlier programs, including the Soil Bank program of the 1950s through the CRP in the 1980s and 1990s had more to do with reducing excess grain supplies and boosting depressed markets, Hubbard said.

Hubbard and Singer acknowledged the tension that can exist between crop producers and conservation programs.

"It's a balancing act — 90 feet up on a tight rope," Singer said.

Subsoilers Demonstrate Importance Of 'Soil Husbandry' At Ag Progress

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

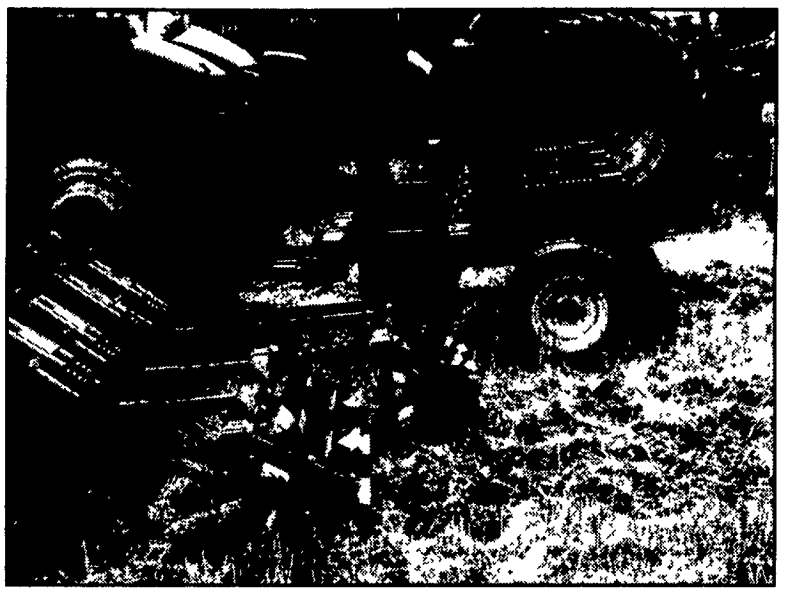
ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — When heavy equipment rolling over spring fields starts packing dirt, overall soil quality deteriorates. But rather than using "prescription" deep tillage to unpack the soil, growers should simply be aware of ways to promote what one Penn State scientist calls "good soil husbandry."

Sjoerd Duiker, Penn State assistant professor of soil management, provided tips on how to promote good soil tilth and overall soil health during a deep tillage/subsoiler demonstration at the Ag Progress Days site Tuesday morning in Rockspring.

The key: build up the organic matter of soil to promote soil "life," said Duiker.

"The less tillage we are doing, the better it is for the soil," said the soil scientist.

Use prescription tillage "in a sensitive way," he told a few hundred spectators who gathered in front of a backhoe-dug trench at the site. The demonstration site examined the effects of deep tillage on breaking up compaction and "clods."



Several tillage equipment manufacturers demonstrated for a large crowd Tuesday morning at Ag Progress.

The topsoil was impacted down recently with a 35-ton truck, similar to equipment used to haul manure to the fields on farms in the spring. This created a scenario in which subsoilers could work the hardpan.

Subsoilers are manufactured differently. Some incorporate straight shanks, curved shanks, or other designs to break up deep soil compaction. But the straight shank disturbs the soil surface the least. The design also leaves more residue on the soil surface.

Companies demonstrating subsoilers included Unverferth, Case IH, Brillion, and Sunflower.

Good soil health, Duiker told the spectators, cuts down on soil erosion. "This is heaven for the soil," he noted, with earthworms and good tilth. "Over there," he pointed to impacted soil and soil with cloddiness, creating poor seedbed conditions, "is hell."

Md. State Fair Posts Events Schedule

TIMONIUM, Md. — F. Grove Miller, president and chairman of the Maryland State Fair and Agricultural Society, has announced the 2002 Maryland State Fair schedule of events.

The complete schedule of livestock and horse shows, midway rides and games, thoroughbred horse racing, special entertainment, 4-H, home arts, and farm and garden exhibits can be found on the Maryland State Fair's Website at marylandstatefair.com.

Celebrating its 121st year, the Maryland State Fair will open Friday, Aug. 23 and run through Monday, Sept. 2, at the Timonium Fairgrounds in Baltimore County.

Early risers are welcome to attend livestock and horse shows at 9 a.m. Exhibit halls are open from 10 a.m.-10 p.m. The Midway opens at 10 a.m. on weekends and noon on weekdays. Admission is only $5 for adults and children under 12 are free. Rides are individually priced. Admittance to the racetrack is included in the admission price of the fair.

Parking on the fairgrounds for a minimal fee and free parking at the Park and Ride location on Deereco Road is available on a first-come, first-served basis. The fairgrounds encourages use of the Light Rail with an easily accessible Light Rail stop at the Fairgrounds' Cow Palace Gate. For fairgoers' convenience, ATM Machines will be located near the 4-H Building and in front of the Exhibition Hall.

Gold Cup Coming To Devon

Firestone Agricultural Tire Division, with the support of its Certified Tire Decals, recently sponsored the Firestone Early Bird "Get You Kicks From A Mule" giveaway. The contest awarded 8 Kawasaki Mule utility vehicles to winners selected nationally from more than 200,000 entries. Bob Benton of Ottsville, Berks Co., Pennsylvania is one of the lucky winners

"The use of utility vehicles like the Kawasaki Mule is growing on today's American farms. This contest is a way for Firestone to say thank you to our customers and dealers and have some fun with it," said Ralph Burchfield, president of Firestone Agricultural Tire Division

Steve Miller of Miller Tire & Auto Co. Blooming Glen, Pennsylvania, a Safemark Distribution Center where the winner entered the contest, said the giveaway was a very positive event. "Firestone's Early Bird Mule giveaway was met with tremendous popularity by our customers." Miller Tire & Auto provides on-site tire services for all farm and industrial needs. They have been serving the farm community since 1959 and can be contacted at 800-891-0059 or on the web at www.millertireauto.com.

Dandie says... For Super Quality Forage this Fall and Next Spring Plant

Zorro Italian Ryegrass

➤ High Quality
➤ High Yields

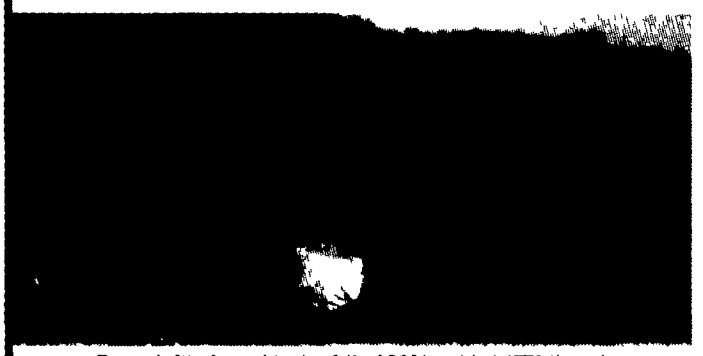
You can make milk on this!

At Western Maryland Research & Education Center (by Hagerstown, MD) Zorro yielded 6773 pounds of dry matter in the spring of 2002.



Zorro (left) planted in the fall of 2001 yielded 6773 lbs. of dry matter in the spring of 2002 in Maryland.

Typical ryegrass silage analysis ranges
(Zorro, a tetraploid variety, will have higher energy levels and lower fiber levels):

Crude Protein	18-24%
ADF	24-28%
NDF	38-50%
NEL	.73-.78
RFV	120-160

Grazing forage analysis
(At 6-10" it's incredible. We recommend adding fiber to the ration).

Crude Protein	23-28%
ADF	15-20%
NDF	25-35%
NEL	.75-.90
RFV	180-290

Jerry Forage Oats may be seeded at 2 bu/ac with Zorro for a higher yield this fall and to help hedge against dry fall weather. Jerry is very leafy and productive. Jerry is cleaned and tested for germination.

Seeding Dates:
Mid August to Mid October. Plant prior to mid-September for a November harvest.
Seeding Rates:
35-45 lbs/acre seeded alone
25-30 lbs/acre seeded with Jerry Forage Oats
Seeding Methods:
Ryegrass seed is smaller than small grains. Plant ¼ to ½ inch deep with good seed-to-soil contact. Use no-till or broadcast followed by cultipacker.
Nitrogen Fertilizer:
50 lbs at planting (can use manure)
50 lbs March during green-up
50 lbs after ea. machine harvest or 2 grazing cycles

Fall Management:
Excessive fall growth (greater than 10 inches) should be harvested, grazed, or clipped to 4".
Silage Harvest Dates:
For super quality silage harvest when crop is 15-20 inches or in boot stage. Typical dates: Nov., Apr 20, May 10 & 25, and mid June. Can kill off earlier for rotation crops.
Crop Rotation:
Zorro is fall and spring productive and can live up to 2 yrs. For crop rotation, Zorro should be either moldboard plowed or sprayed with a min. of 1.5 qt. of Round-up per ac. Century BMR sorghum sundangrass, Millennium BMR forage sorghum, short season silage corn, and soybeans are excellent crops to follow spring production.

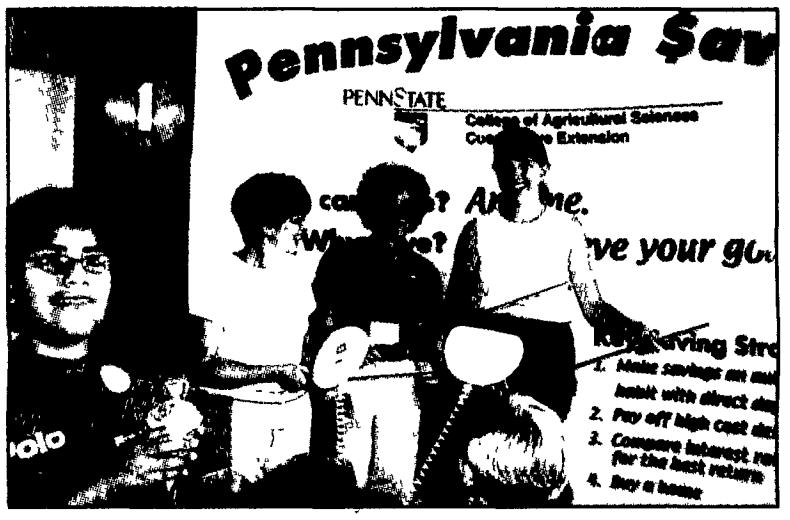
THE LEADER IN THE FIELD

Through The Eyes Of Ag Progress Visitors

Ag Progress is a time to renew old friendships and develop new ones. At left is Sally Bair, former Lancaster Farming correspondent and now chief of staff and press secretary to Pennsylvania's First Lady Kathy Schweiker. Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Becky Mowrer and Jan Harding, former director of PDPPS.

Grandpa and dairy farmer Gideon Stoltzfus from Honey Brook is accompanied by his daughters Charmaine, Juanita, and Susanna, a son-in-law Elvin, and grandchildren Jeremiah, 3, and Terrell, 2. "We came here as kids and now bring our own — they love it," Juanita said.



Robin Kulex, McKean County; Valerie Manganello, Crawford County, and Sarah Siegel, Clarion County, offered plenty of tips for saving money to kids and adults visiting Ag Progress.

Ag Alumni Society board member Aimee Taylor with son Nicholas, Lititz, admires the flower gardens on the grounds of Ag Progress.

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Why do they come?

Thousands of people from around the world, but mostly Pennsylvanians won't miss the annual Ag Progress Days conducted three days at the Russell E. Larson Agricultural Research Center at Rockspring every August.

More exhibitors, more displays, more demonstrations, more information, and more entertainment was designed to make this the best Ag Progress Days ever.

Is that why they come?

Yes and no according to the informal questioning of a sparse percentage of viewers.

"We came as kids and now bring our kids," said Juanita Stoltzfus who attended with three generations of family members from Honey Brook. Her dad Gideon is a dairy farmer who enjoys looking at dairy-related equipment and watching his grandchildren enjoy the day.

It's the diversity of activities available for all ages that continue to draw people again and again.

"It's free!" said Mary Kron-Smith who had four children in tow. The family, who operates a small farm, attends every year. Where else can they find so much fun at no cost?

"I come to see all my ag friends," said Sally Bair, chief of staff and press secretary for Pennsylvania's First Lady Kathy Schweiker. Readers will remember Bair as a Lancaster Farming correspondent for 10 years.

Grandparents, parents, and grandchildren often make the annual trek together to Ag Progress. Such was the case for Jean and Keith Udine who brought daughter Melissa Williams and her children Jake, 6, and Alley, 4.

Udine said that he owns a timber farm and rents out the ground for corn and alfalfa.

"I saw lots of big equipment," Udine said.

His wife and daughter enjoyed attending the flower arranging workshops and the exhibits. But it was Jake and Alley who kept them rushing from one thing to another The children especially liked winding through the corn maze, climbing over equipment, and participating in the many children's activities.

Some people come to help with the 350 commercial exhibits, some to help with workshops and programs.

For whatever the reason, everyone expresses adamant enthusiasm for Ag Progress Days. Here is a sampling of visitors who attend the showcase event.

(Turn to Page B12)

Mary Kron-Smith of Warriors Mark believes Ag Progress is a gold mine of activities for her children who include Sadie, 11; Isaac, 9; Eli, 5; and Simeon, 2. The family lives on a small farm and attend Ag Progress every year.

On Being a Farm Wife

(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

There's something special about a shiny, brand-spanking-new, box of crayons.

Maybe it's the anticipation of opening the pristine container, absent, of crunched corners, finger smudges and streaks of waxy-color tested on the box for shading. Or maybe it's the back-to-school aura of tackling a new year of learning, along with new clothes, new shoes, spotless notebooks and a new backpack.

Even as a grandma, I am enthralled with a box of new crayons. My fingers sometimes long to try out the wonderful, expanded array of shades, some shimmering with iridescence, others in bright neons, on a blank paper. Along with the standard primary colors, it's a hard pick to select from the stunning array of choices offered in a contemporary large box of crayons.

End-of-summer, as marked by the return of school days and August's waning calendar page, usually finds our outside world splashed with the vivid shades of Mother Nature's crayon box. Annual borders have usually reached their zenith, sporting glow-yellow marigolds, waves of purple petunias, zinnias in shades of perky pink, school bus orange and radical red. Late summer colors lean toward vivid intensity, splashing the deep green of lawns and parks with gleeful splotches and patches of riotous colors.

But the one color most unlikely to be picked first out of a brand new box is what Mother Nature is scribbling — in and out of the lines — all over our late-summer scenery this year.

Brown. Mother Nature's hot-color-pick of the season.

A shade best labeled dead grass beige (actually "dormant" lawnkeepers tell us) colors the apron of would-be lawn around countless houses. Actual green lawns in this desert-like summer are a glaring giveaway of someone teasing fate (and their water supply) with a soaker hose. Even golf courses are strangely barren, their groomed and watered greens in sharp contrast to seas of straw-colored fairways.

Numerous tree species are dyeing their leaves a crispy brunette hue rather than their usual pretty fall colors. Some, along fields and highways, have probably been sprayed to maintain clear rightaways. Others appear to be succumbing early to heat stress and shedding cascades of leaves.

A shade of dull buff blankets our pasture meadow, where tender, tasty grass for grazing is a distant memory for the heifers. Even shady spots in the woods along the creek have gone dry and crunchy, offering no soft, cushioning spot for an afternoon cow nap.

Waters of the ponds, rapidly receding from lack of underground replenishment and 90-degree heat evaporation, are encircled with fast-widening edges of ugly umber-colored mud. Above the drying mud, waterlily leaves go limp and yellow from lack of wet feet. Stepping into the surprisingly-spongy edges sends a flurry of frogs fleeing, chirping, and skittering for safety in the shallow, stagnating remains.

Acres of corn fields have faded to a drab olive-brown almost overnight, many transitioning through a sickly-gray-green phase of extreme drought stress. Stalks with enough moisture to have made ears of rapidly drying at both ends, the stalk and bottom leaves turning brown from bottom up, while their tassel-tops fade even faster. Few ears are fully pollinated, and many corn fields around the region, planted late or under other stress, may have no ears at all, or "nubbins" at best.

Even the garden, low-lying and heavily mulched, has succumbed earlier than usual to brown shades. Pumpkin hopes shriveled on the vine early, while the last of the butternut squash appears to be gasping for breath. Most of the melons yielded at least some fruit before drying into scratchy strings, with a few hills of late-planted ones, coddled with every-other-day, offerings of water, still islands of welcome green.

Dust, always plentiful here on the farm, is in extreme-super-abundance, as evidenced by coatings of its light brown on everything — furniture, windows, vehicles, clothes left laying in pickup trucks. On the brighter side, everything is basically dusty dun color and it all matches for a change.

Meanwhile, on the other side of the world, a different sort of brown wreaks havoc with lives, property and historic sites: raging, muddied floodwaters. Bizarre, isn't it, that our country faces the most widespread drought conditions in 70 years, while parts of Europe threaten to wash off the maps?

It's high time we get Mother Nature a new box of crayons.

And replace the brown shades with duplicates of green.

Well Preserved

The Well Preserved news column is prepared by Lancaster County Cooperative Extension. It includes food preservation information and questions.

Entering Canned Goods In The Fair

With the approach of fair season, many food preservers are selecting their best jars for competition. What are the things a judge looks for when determining who gets a blue ribbon?

According to fair judges, Nancy Wiker and Linda Lueck-Stoner, some of the most obvious things are overlooked by competitors. Rules for each category need to be followed exactly. Enter contents in clean jars. Check that the lid is sealed. Use two piece lids.

Jars with one piece lids or zinc lids will automatically be disqualified. Use new lids and new rings. Lids with a date indicate an older lid because jar lids are no longer dated. Rusty rings are not appropriate. (Normally rings are removed from jars for home storage. However, for competition you need to have clean rings on jars to keep lids on securely as jars are transported. Judges will remove the rings temporarily to examine contents and to sometimes taste the food.)

Food should be labeled clearly with a label that is small enough that the judge is able to see the contents of the jar. The label should include the contents, date canned, and processing method used—whether it was done in the boiling water bath or pressure canned. Processing time should be included along with pounds pressure for pressure canned foods. Refer to the fair handbook for specific label requirements.

Various score sheets indicate judges will consider safety, appearance, and product. Unsealed or moldy jars or jars showing any sings of spoilage will be disqualified immediately. Use standard canning jars with standard two piece canning lids that are clean, neat, correctly labeled, and free of distracting decorations. Make sure that you have washed the outside of the jar to remove any food residue, stickiness, mineral deposits, or water marks.

Blue ribbon jars will be fully packed with fruit or vegetables of uniform size. Appropriate head space shows ½ inch for fruits, tomatoes, and pickled products, ⅛ to ¼ inch for canned sweet spreads, 1 inch for canned vegetables, and 1 ½ inches for canned meats.

No rising air bubbles or foam should be in the jars as this would indicate spoilage. No foreign matter such as seeds, stems, skins should be visible. Food should appear uniform and naturally shaped with smooth, clean edges. Evidence of ideal maturity shows-avoid green, hard, underripe food or soft overripe food. Liquid should be clear and cover the solids. Juice should be uniform and not separated. Food should not show signs of bruising, spice stains, or darkened surfaces.

In addition, pickles should be young, firm, and with small seeds. Pickling brine should cover the solids. If oil is used, less than ¼ inch of oil should be on the top. Liquid should be clear without sediment. However, fermented pickles will have a cloudy brine.

Sweet spreads have some special characteristics. Jelly should be firm, with a clean cut that holds its shape. Jelly should not be runny, gummy or rubbery. Jam will flow slightly and should not be stiff, rough, or rubbery. Butters such as apple or peach butter should flow slightly and spread smoothly. Conserves, marmalades, and preserves will have pieces of fruit in a thick syrupy gel. Color should be uniform and appropriate to the fruit.

Jellies will be bright, clear, and transparent. Butters such as apple or peach will be darker in color and opaque.

Do judges taste everything? It depends upon the judge. Most judges taste dried foods, jams, jellies, fruit butters, and vinegars. Most do not taste vegetables, fruits, meats, or salsas. Some taste pickles and relishes while other judges evaluate them on appearance.

As you look over the results of your food preservation season, perhaps you will decide to enter your best jars in competition. May it be a rewarding experience!

If you have food preservation questions, a home economist is available to answer questions on Wednesdays 10:00 a.m.-1:00 p.m., call 717-394-6851 or write Penn State Cooperative Extension, Lancaster County, 1383 Arcadia Rd., Rm.1, Lancaster, PA, 17601.

Look For Simply Delicious Snap Beans

Snap beans come in a variety of shapes and sizes. The most common is the green snap bean with a round, straight pod. Yellow snap beans or wax beans are also popular. Purple-podded beans (which turn green when cooked) and flat-podded beans (also known as Romano or Italian beans) are specialty varieties that have a distinctive flavor preferred by some. Snap beans are a favorite vegetable year around, available either fresh, canned or frozen.

Commonly called string beans, they are most correctly termed snap beans after the sound of being broken into bite-sized pieces. Fifty years ago, they were truly string beans because they had a tough "string" along the seam edge of the pods. This string had to be pulled off before the bean could be snapped. Plant breeders have since succeeded in breeding this undesirable characteristic out of most popular varieties of snap beans grown today.

Snap bean pods are actually the fruits of the bean plant that contain the immature seeds. If the beans are left to completely ripen on the vine, the pod dries up and the seeds mature into dry beans. Kidney beans are the same species as snap beans but simply a special variety whose seeds are dark red in color.

Health authorities recommend Americans eat three to five servings a day of vegetables. Snap beans are a popular choice for one of those servings and are a good source of vitamin A and fiber. Noted Lancaster County cookbook author Betty Groff recommends the following bean recipes for your enjoyment.

SWISS-STYLE GREEN BEANS

4 cups fresh or frozen~ cut green beans
1 medium onion, finely chopped
1 cup water
2 tablespoons butter or shortening
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
2 cups sour cream
1½ teaspoons salt
6 ounces Swiss or white American cheese, grated
½ cup slivered almonds

In a two-quart saucepan, bring beans, onion, and water to a boil for 10 minutes. Drain. Put beans and onions in a buttered 1½-quart casserole. In a one-quart saucepan, melt the butter. Blend in the flour until smooth. Gradually add sour cream and salt, stirring constantly with wire whip. Fold in the grated cheese. Pour cheese sauce over beans. Top with almonds and bake in a preheated oven at 350 degrees Fahrenheit for 40 minutes.

This dish is very rich. For a milder flavor, use white American cheese.

~When using frozen beans, cut the baking time to 20 minutes.

Microwave: In a two-quart covered glass casserole bring beans, onions, and ¼ cup water to a boil for about seven minutes. Drain and place beans and onions in a buttered casserole. Pour cheese sauce over top and cover. Bake on high in the microwave oven for 14 minutes. Let stand three to five minutes before serving.

Serves 6.

FRIED GREEN BEANS

½ pound bacon
1 pound green beans, trimmed and cut in pieces
3 medium potatoes, peeled and sliced thin
1 cup sweet corn kernels (about three ears, kernels cut off)
1½ teaspoons freshly ground black pepper
½ cup milk
¼ cup evaporated milk

Fry the bacon in a heavy skillet until crisp. Remove and drain on paper towels. Add the beans, potatoes, corn, and pepper to the fat in the pan. Stir and fry until golden brown. Add the milk and evaporated milk, cover with a lid, and simmer on low heat for 10 minutes. Serve garnished with the crumbled crisp bacon.

Serves 6.

ITALIAN GREEN BEANS WITH WATER CHESTNUTS

1 pound fresh Italian or regular green beans
4 slices bacon
1 clove garlic, crushed or thinly sliced
1 cup drained sliced water chestnuts
½ teaspoon salt
Dash freshly ground pepper

Wash and cut the beans diagonally into bite-size pieces. Fry the bacon in a wok or heavy skillet until crisp. Remove and drain on paper towels. Add the beans and garlic to the hot bacon fat and stir-fry for one minute. Cover with lid and fry for another minute until beans are bright and green and slightly golden around edges. Add the sliced water chestnuts and stir-fry approximately one minute until their edges are also golden brown. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, and check for seasoning. Serve at once, garnishing top with crumbled bacon.

Serves 4.

GREEN BEAN SOUP WITH BEEF

4 cups very strong beef stock
1 cup chopped cooked beef
2 medium potatoes, diced
2 carrots, sliced thin
1 stalk celery, sliced thin
1½ cups green beans, cut into 1-inch pieces
1 small onion, chopped
1 teaspoon chopped fresh or ¼ teaspoon dried thyme
1 sprig chopped fresh or ¼ teaspoon crumbled dried rosemary
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 cup heavy cream or evaporated milk

Bring the beef stock to a boil in a 2½-quart saucepan, add the chopped beef, potatoes, carrots, celery, beans, onion, thyme, and rosemary. Taste before adding salt and pepper. If the beef stock is salty, less seasoning will be needed. Simmer for 30 minutes. Add the cream or evaporated milk and heat through. Taste before serving. If necessary, adjust seasoning. Note: you may use canned green beans. In this case, add the beans when the soup has cooked for about 20 minutes.

Serves 6.

Kids In The Kitchen

Have you noticed there are more cooking shows on television, more cooking related magazines available, and kitchens are getting bigger with more extravagant equipment, but less people are actually cooking at home?

With today's busy schedules and a variety of things clamoring for our time and attention, dinner all too often comes out of a box or from a drive-through window.

The family meal prepared and eaten together is fast becoming the exception rather than the rule. I have fond memories of the time I spent in the kitchen cooking with my mother and grandmother. No doubt you do too. But what about your kids? Do they have the same opportunities to make similar memories with you?

Like most other life skills the basics of cooking are learned through example. The most powerful example is yours. Have you ever thought about cooking not just as a chore that needs to be done, but also as an opportunity to spend some quality time with your kids?

When in a rush, it's easy to push children out of the kitchen because there's not enough time to show them what to do. But by watching you prepare a casserole, or bake chocolate chip cookies from scratch, or even simply learning how to wash and cut up vegetables for a tossed salad, your kids are gaining skills along with something invaluable—time with you. So whenever possible, resist the urge to shove them away. You might be pleasantly surprised just how painless and rewarding cooking with kids can be!

Here are some tips for having your kids help in the kitchen:

- Assign small tasks, giving only one direction at a time. Avoid giving too many steps at once.
- Stress kitchen safety and give kids tasks that are appropriate for their age.
- Teaching proper hand washing is always a good start in the kitchen. (Recommended wash time is 20 seconds or the time it takes to sing your ABC's.)
- Using the microwave is a smart and safer way to begin to teach younger children to cook.
- Involve children in all parts of the meal, not only the preparation, but with setting the table and the clean up as well.
- Kids do not have to be continually accomplishing a task. At times, allow children to just sit and watch—this can be a valuable learning tool.
- Praise kids for what they do right, while letting them learn from any mistakes.

When kids help in the kitchen, it gives them a sense of accomplishment in watching their work actually become something that the family will eat. (And sometimes the "picky eater" will eat something that they took part in preparing.) It also can begin to give them a sense of appreciation for the work of the family "cook."

Spending some time in the kitchen with your kids not only teaches basic cooking skills, but also provides quality time together that will develop memories they will keep with them for a lifetime.

The 4-H Program, provided through Penn State Cooperative Extension, has clubs that work on different food projects to learn the basic skills involved in cooking. They also develop skills in healthy food selection, food purchasing, food safety, and learn about food related careers. The 4-H project materials can be used in non-traditional settings as well, including school programs and community groups.

If you would like more information about the 4-H clubs, and/or have a child age 8-19 that may be interested in getting involved, call your local extension office.

Attend Fredericksburg Hinkelfest

FREDERICKSBURG (Lebanon Co.) — September means "Hinklefest" in Lebanon County. The annual Fredericksburg Hinkelfest kicks off the fall season on Friday, Sept. 13 through Sunday, Sept. 15.

On Saturday morning, get your day started at the Hinkelfest at the "Early Bird" Breakfast Buffet served from 8-10:30 a.m. Or, stop under the Big-Top starting at 11 a.m. for juicy, roasted Chicken Barbecue.

On Sunday, Sept. 15, try a chicken breast dinner beginning at 11 a.m.

The famous foods at the fest, include a mouthwatering variety of chicken specialties, including pot-pie, noodle soup, burgers, franks, wings, cheese steaks, barbecue and more. Other great non-chicken items are also available, such as baked potatoes, French fries, funnel cakes, lemonade and sodas.

A hot air balloon launch on Friday, Sept. 13 will begin the Hinkelfest festivities, including a performance of the National Anthem by Carol Kline and on Saturday put on your choice of walking or running shoes and take part in the craft show at 9 a.m. or the Ninth Annual 5K Run at 10 a.m. A weekend of entertainment follows on Friday and Saturday.

For the 12th year, proceeds from this community chicken festival will benefit the Fredericksburg Community Library, Community Association, Fire Company, American Legion and Lions Club. Since 1991, the Hinkelfest has been the source of $200,000 of donations to these community organizations.

Hinkelfest is conducted Sept. 13, 14 and 15 at the Farmer's Pride airport in Fredericksburg. Take Route 343 North to Main Street, Fredericksburg and then west on Main Street to Farmer's Pride airport.

Peaches, Pears Sweeten Summertime Meals

PEACH COBBLER

½ cup biscuit mix
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon milk
1 teaspoon cooking oil
1 teaspoon butter, softened
2 tablespoons sugar, divided
1 teaspoon cinnamon
16-ounce can sliced peaches
3 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons cornstarch
2 teaspoons lemon juice

Stir together biscuit mix and 1 tablespoon sugar. Add milk and cooking oil, mix well. On a floured surface, pat biscuit dough to a 6x4-inch rectangle. Spread with butter, then sprinkle with 1 tablespoon sugar and cinnamon. Roll up jelly-roll style, starting at the narrow side. Cut into fourths.

Drain peaches, preserving syrup. Add water to syrup to make one cup. In a saucepan, combine 3 tablespoons sugar and cornstarch. Stir in syrup mixture. Cook and stir over medium heat until thick and bubbly. Stir in peaches and lemon juice. Divide peach mixture among four one-cup baking dishes. Top each with a biscuit. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 minutes. Servings: 4.

PEACHES AND CREAM PIE

8 ounces cream cheese
15-ounce can peaches, sliced
Small box vanilla pudding mix (NOT instant)

Grease pie plate. Drain peaches well. Combine:

¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 box pudding mix
1 egg

Beat ingredients for two minutes at medium speed. Pour in pan and top with peaches.

Take:

3 tablespoons peach juice
½ cup sugar

Beat 2 minutes at medium speed. Spoon on top leaving one-inch border.

Take:

1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Sprinkle on top of cream cheese mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

CARAMELIZED PEACHES WITH VANILLA CUSTARD

¾ cup sugar
2 cups water
4 firm ripe peaches
1¼ cups store-bought or homemade custard
¾ cup plus 2 tablespoons light cream
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Extra sugar for broiling or grilling

Combine sugar and water in a saucepan and stir over low heat to dissolve sugar. Bring mixture to a boil. Add peaches and poach for 10-15 minutes, or until skewer inserted in the thickest part of the peach meets no resistance. Remove the peaches, peel off the skins, and set aside. Bring the poaching syrup to a boil and boil until reduced by half, about 10 minutes. Set aside to cool slightly.

Combine the custard with the cream, vanilla, and 2 tablespoons syrup. Place the custard mixture in a bowl and place the peaches in the mixture. Sprinkle peaches with a little extra sugar. Broil or grill the peaches, about two inches away from the heat, until the sugar caramelizes, about three minutes. Serves 4.

PEAR JAM

4 cups prepared pears (about 3 pounds fully ripe pears)
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
5 cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

First prepare the fruit. Peel and core about 3 pounds pears. Finely chop or grind fruit. Measure 4 cups into 6- or 8-quart saucepan. Add lemon juice.

Make the jam. Measure sugar and set aside. Mix fruit pectin into fruit in saucepot. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a full boil and boil hard one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and skim off foam with metal spoon. Ladle quickly into hot jars, filling to within ⅛-inch of tops. Cover and process in boiling water bath for five minutes. Makes about 6¼ cups or about seven jars.

Cheese Lover's Passionate 'Pear'ing is the grand prize winner in a contest sponsored by the American Dairy Association.

PEAR VANILLA BUTTER

16-ounce can pear halves or slices in syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Drain pears, reserving ½ cup syrup. Combine pears and syrup in small saucepan; simmer mixture gently for 15 minutes, or until pears are tender. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla. Using a fork or potato masher, mash pears. Makes one cup.

PEAR-CRANBERRY CRISP

3 16-ounce cans pear halves, drained
1 cup cranberries
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ cup butter
½ cup chopped pecans
Ice cream, optional

In greased 9x9-inch baking dish, layer pear halves and cranberries. In medium bowl, combine brown sugar, flour, cinnamon, and nutmeg. Using a pastry blender or two knives, cut butter into flour mixture and blend until it resembles a coarse meal. Stir in pecans. Sprinkle mixture evenly over fruit. Bake at 375 degrees for 30-40 minutes, or until top is lightly browned. If desired, serve topped with vanilla ice cream. Makes six servings.

Combining pears and cheese in a cooked recipe may sound like an unusual combination, but the taste resulted in a grand-prize win for Susan Tingley, Oregon, in a contest sponsored by the American Dairy Association.

If you are searching for a stunning dish to serve to guests, here's one you'll want to try.

CHEESE LOVER'S PASSIONATE 'PEAR'ING

2 medium red delicious or Fuji apples, cored, sliced
1 ripe pear, cored, sliced
2 tablespoons bread crumbs, very fine
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 cup grated Monterey Jack cheese
1 cup grated cheddar cheese
2-3 tablespoons pepper jelly
6 small flour tortillas, cut into sixths

In a 9-inch round pan, layer apples and pears. Combine bread crumbs with brown sugar and sprinkle over fruit. Mix cheeses together and lay over fruit and crumb mixture. Top with pepper jelly.

Bake 20-25 minutes at 350 degrees.

Heat oven to 375 degrees. Place tortilla wedges on baking sheet in single layer. Brush with melted butter. Sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar. Bake until lightly toasted, 6-8 minutes.

Serve tortilla wedges with fruit and cheese mixture.

Bedford County 4-H Centennial Marked By Candlelight Celebration

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — A heavy downpour forced the Bedford County 4-H Centennial Candlelight Celebration to be held in the show barn.

Originally planned to follow the Bedford County Fair Queen contest on the grandstand stage, the celebration had to be moved when the racetrack became to muddy to cross for the event.

Mildred Carper, 86, is the oldest 4-H member present at the candlelighting ceremony. She holds the "spirit" candle.

Despite the weather, attendance was high with more then 200 participants ranging from age 86 to the youngest Bedford County 4-H members.

Roger Christiana led the four-leaf clover formed crowd in singing "God Bless the USA," and the entire Christiana family joined in "America the Beautiful" and "Friends."

Former 4-H member, Kendy Gable of New Enterprise, sang the "Star Spangled Banner."

Two special ladies were honored. Leone Gibson who could not be present celebrated her 90th birthday in June. She represents the oldest 4-H alumni from the Bedford 4-H program. A retired school teacher, she lives in the Friends Cove Area and was a member of the Charlesville 4-H group from 1927 until 1929. Leone remembers participating in sewing, cooking, home improvement, and a state level demonstration of table etiquette.

Second oldest and present for the event was Mildred Carper, 86, who served as a 4-H leader in Snakespring Township from 1946 until 1959. Her club projects included sewing and cooking. The 4-H agent's during those years were Maude Drum and Crystal Summers. Mildred was honored with a special "spirit" candle at the Bedford Fair ceremony.

Kelly Lindner, Bedford County Council president, presented the 4-H Spirit as the candlelighting began. Kathryn Albright, county council secretary presented the Head H; Louis Martin, county council reporter, Heart H; Crystal Bywater, county council vice president, Hand H; and Richard Peterson, county council member, Health H.

As the candles were lit, the crowd sang "Pass It On" followed by the 4-H pledge.

The Bedford County 4-H Club has its own building where 4-H projects are displayed for the fair as well as junior arts and crafts and vegetables. It is also the site of the annual 4-H sponsored bake auction which each year raises operating funds for the building.

Kendy Gable, former 4-Her sings "The Star Spangled Banner."

Present and past 4-H members form a large four leaf clover in the show barn.

Each year the 4-H bake sale auction raises funds to keep the 4-H building running smoothly.

Do You Suffer From Fibromyalgia?

When I was introduced to New Image I was 50 pounds over weight and suffered from fibromyalgia I was so depressed and in pain the majority of the time I was taking steroids and four other medications, one of which made me so 'groggy' I could hardly get out of bed and another gave me ulcers I began taking New Image secretly because I thought my family would make fun of me After a month, I discovered I had lost eight pounds and seven inches Wow! Then it dawned on me, I was feeling better, the depression and pain were gone In two months I was off all medications "I feel SUPERIFIC!" Now, two years later I have lost 43 pounds and 30 inches Thank you New Image for giving me a new life again Judy Swift - Mt Washington, KY

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a self-addressed stamped envelope. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible. Check your recipe to make sure you copy the right amounts and complete instructions for making the recipe. Sometimes we receive numerous answers to the same request, but cannot print each one.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address. You may also e-mail questions and answers to LGOOD.EPH@LNPNEWS.COM

QUESTION — A reader from Lebanon wants a recipe for pizza sauce that tastes like the Ragu brand.

QUESTION — Wayne Erb, Mount Joy, wants to know how to freeze potatoes for French fries, and how long should they be cooked in oil so they don't turn black?

QUESTION Malinda Renno, Fort Royal, wants a recipe for barbecued beans, which appeared in the Farm Journal sometime during the 1960s. She lost the recipe, but recalls that it had meatballs and a very good barbecue flavor.

QUESTION — Penny Haber from Bucks County writes that for several years she has used a Victoria Squeezo Strainer to prepare her tomatoes for canning. She has also tried to use it to prepare strawberries and raspberries for jelly making but the proportions have turned out wrong. She would appreciate if readers who have successfully prepared fruit this way send instructions and the proportions of sugar, fruit pectin, and fruit they used.

QUESTION — Karen Ramseur, Williamstown, N.J., writes that she attended the Kutztown Pennsylvania German Festival recently. A Pennsylvania German cooking presentation demonstrated drying corn on a double-walled pan with a funnel adaptor at one end to add water. She also attended the country auction featured at the festival and brought a vegetable dryer. Anyone have recipes to instruct her how to dry vegetables? Karen also thanks readers who sent in "wonderful" lemon jelly and cornbread recipes in answer to her requests.

QUESTION — Gail Silveira would like a recipe for a corn, shrimp soup, which she recalls had been printed in a previous issue. Anyone have the recipe to which she is referring?

QUESTION — Eva Burrell, Glen Gardner, N.J., wants to know how to make filet of beef on the grill by using wet newspapers and encasing meat in a paste made with kosher salt and water. Years ago, the Burrells used this method but can't remember exactly how it was done or the time required to cook per pound. This made the best filet of beef Eva has ever tasted and she would like to use it for several cookouts.

QUESTION — Dave Wilder, Gladwyne, grows lingonberries in Berks County. He wants to know uses for this Old World fruit. The Latin name, Wilder writes, is Vacciniam vitis-idaea. Native varieties are sometimes called cowberry.

QUESTION — Sue Hurley, Newville, requests recipes to make different kinds of instant powdered tea mixes, such as raspberry and peach.

ANSWER — Mrs. Thomas Vandzuna, Portage, requested a recipe for sweet sausage. Thanks to J.C.W., Frederick, for sending a recipe.

Sweet Sausage

10 pounds ground pork (not lean)
5 tablespoons pickling salt
1 pint ice water
3 teaspoons fennel seed
2 teaspoons freshly ground black pepper
1 tablespoon sugar

Grind meat and add all ingredients and mix well. For mild sausage delete the black pepper, for hot sausage, add red pepper to taste.

Shape into patties or stuff into natural or cheesecloth casings. If desired, ripen in refrigerator one to two days to blend flavors and cook.

ANSWER — Joseph Steffey and Stephanie Luckenbaugh, Abbottstown, requested a good recipe to make Lebanon bologna and deer bag bologna that tastes like Lebanon bologna. J.C.W. recommends contacting the Sausage Maker, 117 Military Rd., Buffalo, N.Y. 14207 or call the company at (716) 876-5521.

ANSWER — Betty Hopkins wrote that she remembers as a young girl living in Arizona being served a refreshing drink that she'd like to make for her three children. Her neighbor made the drink in individual cups. She used orange sherbert and either ginger ale or orange soda. Thanks to Rebecca King, Parkesburg, for sending a recipe for orange sherbet punch and another punch recipe that she believes readers will enjoy.

Party Punch

7 cups pineapple juice
1½ pints soft vanilla ice cream
1 pint orange sherbet
3 cups chilled ginger ale

In a large bowl, place pineapple juice, orange sherbet, vanilla ice cream. Beat until blended and pour into punch bowl. Gently stir in ginger ale. Makes 24 cups.

Rainbow Punch

6 ounces frozen orange concentrate
6 ounces frozen lemonade
1 quart chilled apple juice
2 quarts chilled ginger ale
Raspberry, orange, lime, and lemon sherbet

In a large punch bowl, stir together concentrates and apple juice. Stir in ginger ale, scoop sherbet into balls and spoon into punch. Makes about 14 one-cup servings.

ANSWER — Thanks to Rebecca King, Parkesburg, for sending two dessert recipes, which had been requested by a reader.

Hot Fudge Pudding

Sauce:
2 tablespoons butter
¾ cup granulated sugar
¼ cup chocolate syrup or 1 tablespoon baking cocoa
½ teaspoon salt
1⅔ cups water

Combine all sauce ingredients in saucepan. Boil 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Put into 9-inch square baking pan.

Batter:
1 cup flour
¾ cup sugar
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 tablespoons melted butter
2 tablespoons baking cocoa

Drop batter by tablespoonful into sauce and bake at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes. Delicious served hot with ice cream or whipped topping.

Butterscotch Apple Cake

3 eggs
1¼ cups vegetable oil
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2½ cups all-purpose flour
2 cups sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
4 apples, chopped to 4 cups
1 cup pecans
11-ounces butterscotch chips

Beat eggs, oil, and vanilla. Combine flour, sugar, baking powder, salt, baking soda, and cinnamon. Add to egg mixture. Mix well. Stir in apples and pecans. Pour into 9x13-inch baking dish. Sprinkle with butterscotch chips. Bake at 325 degrees for 40-45 minutes.

ANSWER — Ruth Klingler, Selinsgrove, requested a recipe for pineapple muffins. She had the opportunity to taste them at a Polynesian Luau she attended at Sea World, Orlando, Fl. The muffins were absolutely delicious, Ruth wrote. Even her husband, who doesn't like pineapples, liked the muffins. Thanks to Lee Laverty, Mount Joy, for sending a recipe. Catherine Durling had this advice: "There are many recipes for pineapple muffins. To be sure to get the right recipe, ask the source. The address for Sea World is SeaWorld Orlando, 7007 SeaWorld Dr., Orlando, FL 32821. Or call (800) 327-2424.

Pineapple Muffins

2 cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 egg, well beaten
1 (8 oz.) carton sour cream
1 (8 oz.) crushed pineapple, undrained
½ cup melted shortening
½ cup chopped pecans

Combine first five ingredients. Make a well and combine egg, sour cream, pineapple and shortening. Stir in dry ingredients and ½ cup pecans. Bake in muffin tins. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes or until brown. Yields 1 ½ dozen.

Pineapple Carrot Muffins

1½ cups all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking soda
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
½ cup vegetable oil
1 (8-¼ ounce) can crushed pineapple, drained
1 cup grated carrots
¾ cup sweetened shredded coconut

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour a 12-cup muffin tin or line with paper liners.

In a large bowl, combine flour, baking soda, salt, nutmeg and cinnamon; make a well in the center.

In another bowl, beat eggs, sugar and vegetable oil until well blended. Stir in pineapple, carrots and coconut. Pour mixture into well. Mix batter until just moistened; do not over mix.

Fill prepared muffin tins three-fourths full. Bake for 18 to 22 minutes or until muffins test done. Cool in pan on wire rack. Makes 1 dozen muffins.

Pina Colada Muffins

1⅓ cups sweetened flaked coconut
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
¾ cup milk
¼ cup oil
¼ cup butter, melted
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
⅓ cup crushed pineapple, drained well

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour a 12-cup muffin tin or line with paper liners.

Sprinkle the coconut on a baking sheet and toast for about 10 minutes, or until golden, stirring frequently.

In a large mixing bowl, combine flour, sugar, baking powder and salt.

In a small bowl, combine eggs, milk, oil, butter and vanilla. Stir into flour mixture just until moistened; do not over mix. Fold in the toasted coconut and pineapple.

Fill prepared muffin tin two-thirds full. Bake for 25 to 30 minutes or until muffins test done. Cool in pan on wire rack. Makes 1 dozen muffins.

ANSWER — Fern Freeman, Elliottsburg, wants a recipe for black olive bread. Thanks to Lee Laverty, Mount Joy, for sending this recipe.

Black Olive Bread

2 teaspoons active dry yeast
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped black olives
3 tablespoons olive oil
1¼ cups warm water (110 degrees)
1 tablespoon cornmeal

In a large bowl, mix together flour, yeast, sugar, salt, black olives, olive oil, and water.

Turn out dough onto a floured board. Knead until smooth and elastic, 5 to 10 minutes. Set aside, and let rise about 45 minutes, until it doubles in size. Punch down. Knead well again, for about 5 to 10 minutes. Let rise for about 30 minutes, until it doubles in size.

Round the dough on kneading board. Place upside down in a bowl lined with a lint-free, well floured towel. Let rise until double in size.

While the bread is rising for the third time, put a pan of water in the bottom of the oven. Preheat oven to 500 degrees F (260 degrees C).

Gently turn loaf out onto a sheet pan that has been lightly oiled and dusted with cornmeal.

Bake loaf at 500 degrees F (260 degrees C) for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 375 degrees F (190 degrees C). Bake for 30 more minutes, or until done.

ANSWER — Catherine Conrad, Pottstown, wanted a recipe to make Chinese cookies called Hang Yang Bang, which contain almond flavoring and an almond pressed on top.

Hang Yang Bang
(Chinese Almond Cookies)

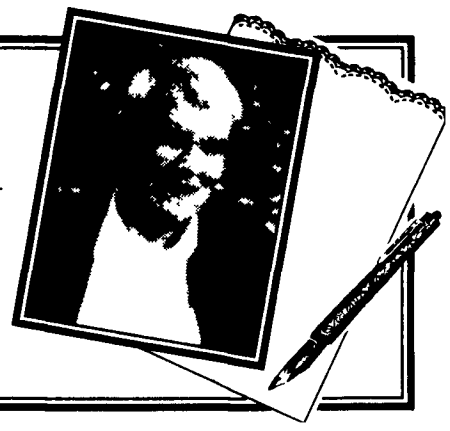
1 cup vegetable shortening
½ cup granulated sugar
¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon almond extract
2¼ cups all-purpose floor
⅛ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons baking powder
5 dozen whole blanched almonds
1 egg yolk
2 tablespoons water

Preheat oven to 350F. In a large bowl with an electric mixer, beat shortening with granulated sugar and brown sugar until creamy. Add whole egg and almond extract; beat until well blended. In another bowl, stir together flour, salt, and baking powder; add to creamed mixture, blending thoroughly. To shape each cookie, roll about 1 tablespoon dough into a ball. Place balls 2 inches apart on ungreased baking sheets, then flatten each slightly to make a 2" round. Gently press an almond into center of each round. Place egg yolk and water in a small bowl; beat together lightly with a fork. Brush mixture over top of each cookie with a pastry brush. Bake for 10 to 12 minutes or until lightly browned. Transfer to racks and let cool. Store airtight.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser



As of this writing our area of the county has had practically no rain for the past two months. My garden is empty except for a few tomato plants that the ground hogs have enjoyed. We put a fence around the garden, but the next day the ground hogs had dug three holes under it.

Somehow I've been able to keep three vases full of flowers. The animals do not eat them. There are several pink and red cosmos plants in a corner. There are a few gladiolus nearby and a beautiful bed of nasturtiums with yellow, red and orange blossoms. Despite being small bushes, our rose bushes have provided a few blooms. There is a variety of colors from white and yellow to shades of pink and red. My most beautiful plant is on the front porch and is a mandevilla. At first I thought it was a bougainvillea. It has about 20 large pink blossoms reaching to the ceiling and beyond.

Some of our grandchildren have been spending a little time with us. They come for lunch, and I try to entertain them. Some of them like to watch tapes while others like to look at pictures. I guess my postcard albums are of more interest to me than to them as they are slanted toward history. Most were sent in the early 1900s when telephones did not exist. The cards delivered many messages.

One activity that we've shared is the making of applesauce. We have a very old tree in our front yard, which had to be wired together as it was splitting. Now the apples are small, but they do give us good sauce and the children like it.

My husband is still waiting for a solution to his problem. He has not been able to regain strength in his leg, and therefore cannot get outside to do the things that he would like to do.

Whole Grains Offer Health Benefits

COLUMBUS, Ohio — I happen to like whole-wheat bread, brown rice and other whole grains, but I have a hard time convincing my husband to try them. Can you list the reasons why whole grains are better for you?

Whole grains offer numerous benefits over their stripped-down "refined" counterparts. They have more minerals, including trace minerals such as selenium, magnesium, zinc and copper, that most people don't get enough of. And they have more fiber, helping whole-grain you reach the 25 grams of fiber recommended in a day.

Most researchers have concluded that diets rich in whole grains can reduce the risk of heart disease and some types of cancer. In fact, in 1999, the Food and Drug Administration allowed foods that contain 51 percent or more of whole-grain ingredients by weight to make that health claim on their labels, as long as they are also low in total fat, saturated fat and cholesterol. There's also evidence from the long-term Nurses' Health Study that whole-grain foods reduce incidence of stroke in women.

Just recently, a study in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition offered more good reason to choose whole grains. Results indicated that overweight people who eat whole grains appear to be able to better manage blood-sugar concentrations with minimal production of insulin. That helps improve insulin sensitivity, which would help prevent type II diabetes as well as heart disease.

Only 11 people participated in the study, so it will be interesting to see if results are confirmed with additional research. But the results certainly bolster your argument.

Whole-grain foods include some breads and crackers, whole-grain breakfast cereals, oatmeal, pearl barley, bulgur, brown rice, and popcorn.

Be careful, though. You have to read ingredient lists carefully. For example, some bran cereals are whole-grain, others aren't. Check the ingredient list for "whole bran." On all products, look for the words "whole grain," "whole wheat," "cracked wheat," "graham flour" or "whole cornmeal" at the top of the ingredient list. Be on guard for words that do not indicate whole grain, including "multi-grain," 'stone-ground," "100 percent wheat," "seven-grain," "pumpernickel" or "organic."

Plenty Of Fun For Kids Attending Ag Progress Days

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Think you know how to wash your hands?

If you were one of the thousands of kids who attended the Handwashing University at Ag Progress Days this week, you've got a certificate to prove it. You also probably found out that you really had not been getting off all those germs that hide beneath your fingernails and cling to the crevices in your hands. Those germs grow bacteria and show up as squiggly little figures beneath a microscope.

Technology enabled kids to see the germs that survived soap and water, but it also shows that there is nothing like a good scrubbing to get rid of bad bugs.

The Family Learning Hub was packed with fun things to do that were actually educational. The latest research and technology was wrapped in fun activities such as fishing for savings tips and treasure hunts.

As usual climbing over tractors, petting live animals, riding a horse, milking a cow, and collecting stickers and balloons prove to attract the most kids.

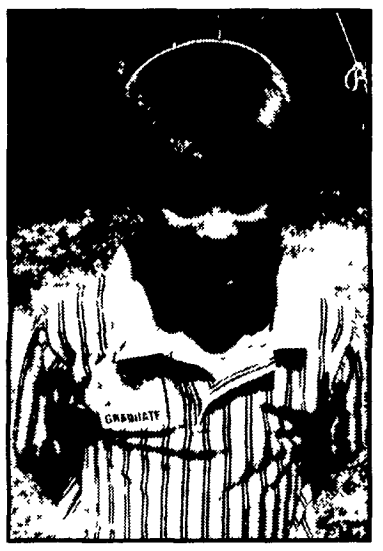
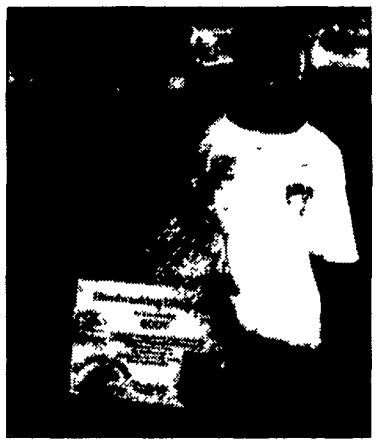
Balloons are free and a favorite for Megan, 4, and Nicole, 2, the children of Joel and Joanna Miller, Thomasville.

Lucas and Erin Ashley, children of John and Ellen Ashley, with Ashley Bierly, daughter of Eric and Shelly Bierly, see there is more to hand washing than merely running one's hands through a stream of water.



Dean High, 8, Hanover, found plenty of fun to smile about during his Ag Progress visit.



Cody and Shanda Pheasant of Blair County received a certificate from the Handwashing University.

Petting a miniature donkey is Brittany Oliver of Clearfield County. She visited Tuesday with her grandmother Mary Ann Oliver.

Lebanon County extension agent Sandra Parker Hall, left, welcomes Dolores, Ryan, and Janelle Weaver to the Family Learning Hub by offering a special sticker. The Weavers are the children of Wayne and Esther Weaver, Narvon.

At right, the audience listens to a Birds of Prey demonstration about screech owls that eat mice and clack their beaks when unhappy or scared.

FSA Farm Loans For Socially Disadvantaged Persons

POTTSVILLE (Schuylkill Co.) — The Farm Service Agency (FSA) can make and guarantee loans to socially disadvantaged applicants to buy and operate family-size farms and ranches. Funds specifically for these loans are reserved each year.

A socially disadvantaged farmer is one of a group whose members have been subjected to racial, ethnic, or gender prejudice because of their identity as members of the group without regard to their individual qualities. For purposes of this program, socially disadvantaged groups are women, African Americans, American Indians, and Alaskan Natives, Hispanics, and Asian and Pacific Islanders.

Direct loans are made to applicants by FSA and include both farm operating and farm ownership loans.

Guaranteed loans also may be made for ownership or operating purposes, and may be made by any lending institution subject to Federal or State supervision (banks, savings and loans, insurance companies and units of the Farm Credit system.) Typically, FSA guarantees 90 or 95 percent of a loan against any loss that might be incurred if the loan fails.

Farm ownership loan funds may be used to purchase or enlarge a farm, purchase easements or rights of way needed in the farm's operation, erect or improve buildings such as a dwelling or barn, promote soil and water conservation and development, and pay closing costs.

Farm operating loan funds may be used to purchase livestock, poultry, farm, and home equipment, feed, seed, fuel fertilizer, chemicals, hail and other crop insurance, food, clothing, medical care, and hired labor. Funds also may be used to install or improve water systems for home use, livestock or irrigation, and other improvements.

Individuals, partnerships, joint operations, corporations, and cooperatives primarily and directly engaged in farming and ranching on family-size operations may apply. A family-size farm is considered to be one that a family can operate and manage itself.

Persons who think they might be eligible are urged to contact their Farm Service Agency County Office or call (570) 622-1555.

Penn Manor Senior Attends National Cooperative Institute

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Penn Manor Senior Andrew Herr recently attended the National Institute on Cooperative Education (NICE), August 5-7 in Chicago, Illinois.

To be selected for this opportunity, Herr attended the Lancaster County Cooperative Institute, where he was selected to attend the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative Institute; and from there, he was selected to attend the NICE Conference.

Presentations during the event focused on the event's theme, "New Cooperative Horizons." Some of the program sessions included mega trends in agriculture and the food system; how cooperatives can benefit, Brazil and its position in international trade; implications of domestic farm policy changes for cooperatives; Chicago Board of Trade, its role and future; and home grown fuels and agriculture's role in U.S. energy policy.

While in Chicago the group toured many sites of interest.

After graduation from high school, Herr plans to attend Penn State University with a goal of becoming a veterinarian.

Andrew Herr

Herr also was selected to attend the Washington Leadership Conference sponsored by the National FFA Organization and the Manor FFA Alumni. Each year, in late July, more than 2,300 young people and teachers from all 50 states spend a week in Washington, D.C., developing their character and relationship-building skills, learning about the hottest new agricultural careers, making friends, setting a vision, visiting their congressional representatives and touring our nation's Capitol.

Prevention Key To Fight West Nile Virus

WOOSTER, Ohio — Researchers with the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center (OARDC) insist that prevention is the only way to keep the state safe from the West Nile Virus, which has killed five people in Louisiana since July 29.

"This is not the kind of disease that we're going to get rid of," said Mo Saif, head of OARDC's Food Animal Health Research. "So we have to be cautious when dealing with mosquitoes and be aware of the fact that the virus could be there."

OARDC is the research arm of Ohio State University's College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences.

Previously seen only in Africa, Asia and southern Europe, West Nile's most serious manifestation is fatal encephalitis (an inflammation of the brain and the spinal chord) in humans and horses. It also causes mortality in certain domestic and wild birds, especially crows and blue jays.

West Nile is spread by the bite of mosquitoes that became exposed to the virus when they fed on infected birds. Most of the people who contract it suffer nothing more than headaches and flu-like symptoms such as fever and muscle aches.

However, the elderly, chronically ill and others with weak immune systems can develop encephalitis, which only occurs in one of 200 cases. Since the first outbreak in 1999, the virus has claimed 23 lives.

In Ohio, West Nile was first identified during the summer of 2001 in a blue jay collected in Lake County. Since then, the Ohio Department of Health (ODH) has found the virus in crows, blue jays and insects in 71 of the state's 88 counties. No human or equine cases have been reported.

"There's no reason to panic," Saif advised. "But people should avoid places where they can be exposed to mosquitoes, especially early in the morning and late in the evening. It is also important to contact the local health department office if dead crows and blue jays are found."

To avoid being bitten by mosquitoes, Ohio State researchers recommend that you:

- Wear light-colored clothing, long-sleeved shirts or jackets, and long slacks.
- Use mosquito netting when sleeping outdoors or in an unscreened area.
- Avoid physical exertion.
- Consider the use of mosquito repellent and use perfumes sparingly, as these may attract mosquitoes.
- Put 16-mesh screens on all doors and windows and keep them in good shape.

Through The Eyes Of Ag Progress Visitors

"Ask the Experts" made up of Penn State specialists in horticulture, plant pathology, entomology, and turfgrass, were kept busy answering questions from home gardeners and professional growers.

Ruthanna, 7, Tanika, 11, and Sharma, 8, the children of Nathan and Linda Beachy of Belleville, said they come to see "everything."

Three generations of the Jean and Keith Udine family from Centre County attended Ag Progress together. With them are their daughter Melissa Williams and grandchildren Jake, 6, and Alley, 4.

You ask You answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to LGOOD.EPH@LNPNEWS.COM

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

ANSWER — Helen MacKinney sent information requested about penny rugs: "No one knows for sure when or where penny rugs came into use. The rugs can be documented back to the American Civil War, but many have come into being well before. Today, penny rugs refer to wool-on-wool applique, generally using a blanket, whipstitch or other simple embroidery stitch. The use was decorative in nature, put on tabletops or sofa backs. The tabs are referred to as tongues, the circles are the pennies, often thought to be named for the coins used as templates and traced onto wool scraps used to make the rugs."

Here are several addresses for those searching for penny rug patterns: Patterns by Pat Sloan & Co., Herndon, Vir. www.QuiltersHome.co or (703) 622-8582. The Need'l Love Company, Inc., P.O. Box 672, Liberty, MO 64068. Phone (816) 781-4833.

State FFA President And Vice President Attend National Conference

WASHINGTON, D.C. — David Bittner, president and Tim Lesher, vice president of the Pennsylvania FFA Association, were two of more than 100 state FFA officers who gathered in Washington, D.C., July 23-28. They gathered to strengthen their skills in leadership and citizenship and discuss national FFA business as part of the National FFA State Presidents' Conference (SPC).

The officers, representing each state, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, were united by the common goal of strengthening agricultural education and FFA in the next year and into the future.

The group attended the conference to prepare for their responsibilities as delegates and committee chairs for the 75th National FFA Convention, to take place in Louisville, Ky., Oct. 30-Nov. 2.

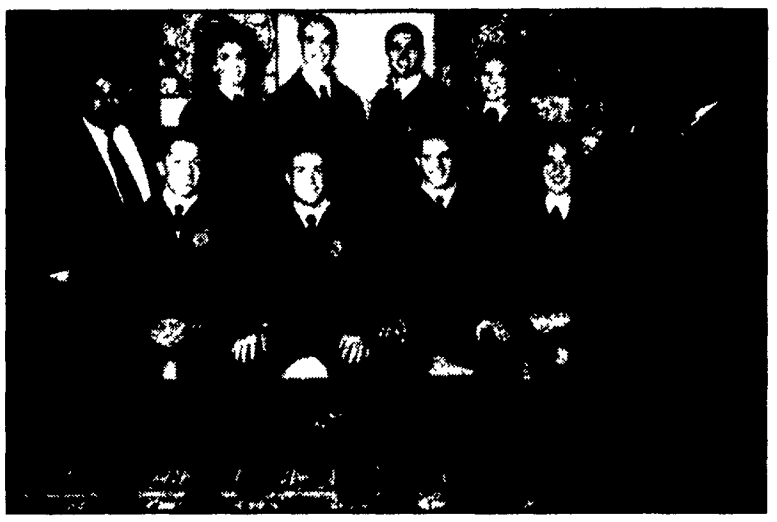
David Bittner, 17, is the son of Barry and Diane Bittner of Berlin, Somerset County. Tim Lesher, 18, is the son of Marlin and Dawn Lesher of Pitman, Schuylkill County.

The conference is planned and conducted by a team of six national FFA officers. State officers attending the conference take the information they learned and, in turn, train chapter officers in more than 7,300 local schools.

Highlights of the conference were meeting with President George W. Bush as well as members of Congress. Students also attended a congressional luncheon, hosted by U.S. Rep. Jerry Moran. They also met with the Secretary of Education Rod Paige and Secretary of Agriculture Ann M. Veneman.

Activities included visits to the Jefferson Memorial, Arlington National Cemetery, Iwo Jima Memorial and the FDR Memorial.

Officers also attended leadership workshops daily to discuss the importance of FFA and agricultural education. The Chevrolet Motor Division and GMAC (General Motors Acceptance Corporation) sponsor SPC as a special project of the National FFA Foundation.



Two officers of the Pennsylvania FFA Association attended the National FFA State Presidents' Conference (SPC) July 23-27 in Washington, D.C., and met with the national officers who planned and led the activity. Seated, from left, are Dane White, national FFA president; David Bittner, Berlin, state president; Tim Lesher, Pitman, state vice president and Robin Niehaus, national FFA secretary. Standing from left are Amber Haugland, central region vice president; Barrett Keene, southern region vice president; Elio Chiarelli, Jr., eastern region vice president; and Abbie Kammerzell, western region vice president. Pictured with the students are Jo Lynne C. Pierce, brand promotions manager, Chevy Trucks; David L. Jones, vice president; Plans Department, GMAC, and Tom Mays, marketing manager, Chevrolet division.

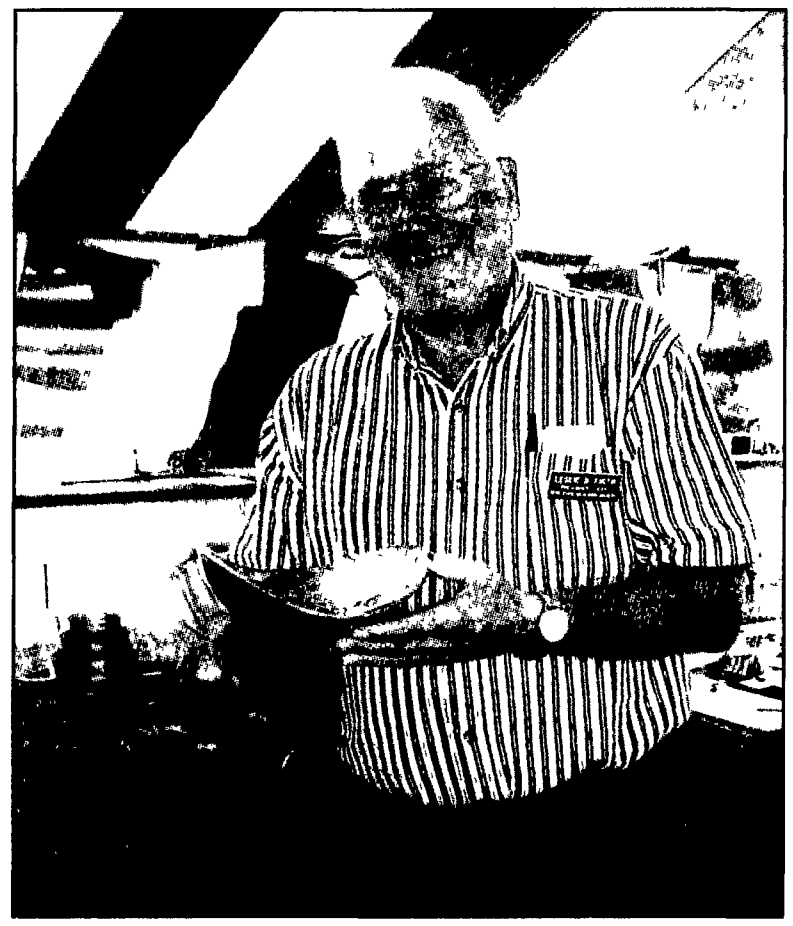
Three generations of the Robert Cowan family demonstrate a vintage horse-powered hay press. The 1905 stationary hay press shows how loose hay was pressed into rectangular bales weighing 100-120 pounds. A mule hitched to a 12-foot pipe sweep arm walks in a circle to drive a 16-foot-long plunger, which compresses the hay in a metal chamber. As the compressed hay emerges, long wires are placed around the bale by hand.



Les Firth holds an antique country store counter scale made by Jacobs Brothers, a well-established manufacturing company. Firth said the maroon color with the stenciled emblem is unusual.

Ag Progress Days Combines Past With Future

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — "Discover Your Future Today," was the theme for Ag Progress Days, Aug. 20-22, but the annual event definitely is also the place to discover your past.

Interspersed among the biggest display ever of the most up-to-date equipment and technology are glimpses to the past.

A demonstration of a rare vintage horse-powered hay press showed how farm work was done almost a century ago. Three generations of the 82-year-old Robert L. Cowan family worked together. Their efforts showed it was slower, dangerous, and much harder to harvest hay in 1905 than today.

Men forked hay into the press as a mule hitched to a 12-foot pipe sweep arm walked in a circle to drive a 16-foot-long plunger, which compressed the hay in a metal chamber. As the compressed hay emerged, the Cowan family placed long wires around the bale to hold it together. Cowan donated the baler to the museum in 1999.

Not far away Bruce Berkey stir a steaming kettle of ham and bean soup. Berkey used a steam boiler that he renovated from an old steam shovel to heat the soup kettles. People could watch the unusual setup and purchased a bowl of soup of the barbecue elk that was also made in the same fashion.

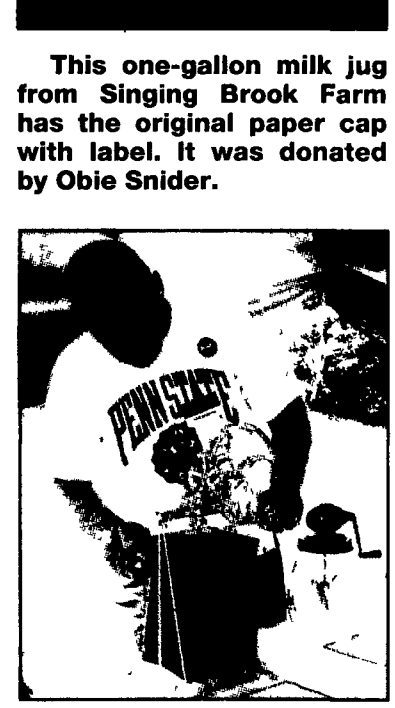
The Pasto Agricultural Museum was open and filled with intriguing pieces from the past. Featured this year were special exhibits on early farm and home pork processing and preservation. The tools and processes sparked memories among the older generation of visitors who recalled the annual butchering day on the farm. For the younger generation, the museum offered a glimpse of life before power equipment and refrigeration.

For the third year, a silent auction featured numerous antiques and collectibles. The donated pieces up for bid were displayed in a tent next to the museum. Each piece was displayed and clearly identified. A page attached to each one allowed visitors to write down their bids on Tuesday and Wednesday. Bidding closed at 4 p.m. on Wednesday. The highest bidder of each item was allowed to take a piece of nostalgia home.

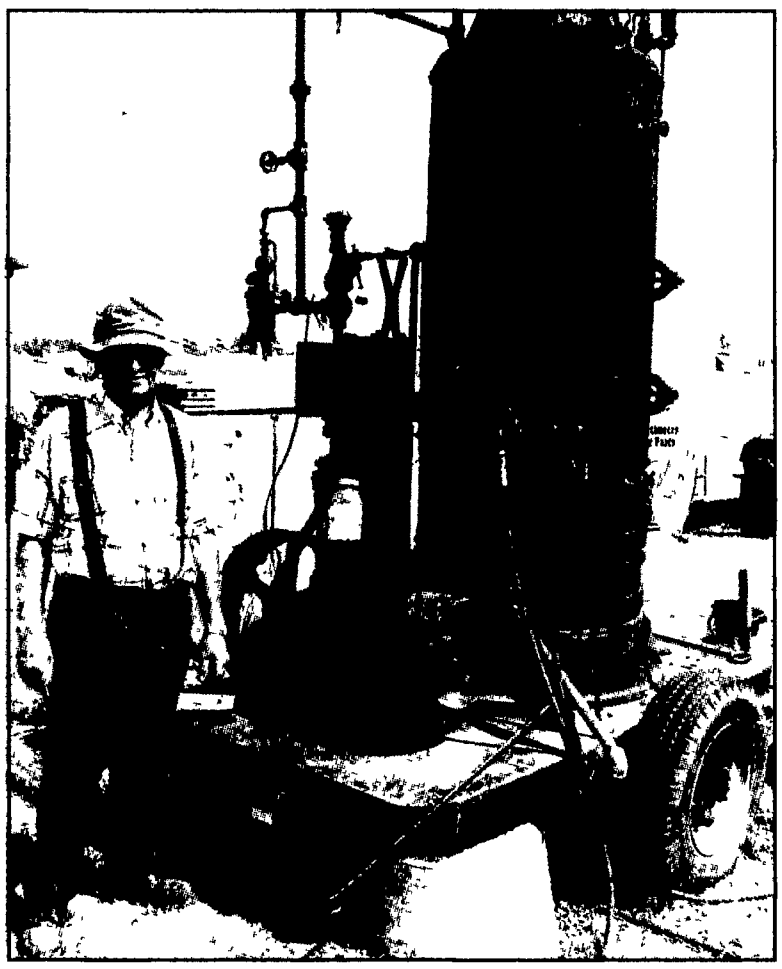
Ron Johnson, a volunteer with the Alumni Endowment for the Pasto Agricultural Museum, said that 170 items with a value of $17,000 were up for bid. Final results were not available at presstime.

Proceeds from the silent auction benefit the Pasto Agricultural Museum.

This one-gallon milk jug from Singing Brook Farm has the original paper cap with label. It was donated by Obie Snider.



This Dazey 2-gallon metal churn brings back memories for Ron Johnson, who remembers churning butter as a kid. Johnson said this metal butter churn patented in 1917 probably produced about two pounds butter when filled with cream and churned.



Bruce Berkey of the Nittany Antique Machinery Association salvaged this steam boiler from an old steam shovel. He adapted it to use to produce the heat to make ham and bean soup and other specialties cooked in large kettles shown at right.

Antiques Questions And Answers

I was told my vase is a valuable piece of art pottery. It is an odd shape and is turquoise blue with long, thin leaves going around it. It is 4½" high. It is marked "Van Briggle/Colorado Springs." What can you tell me?

C.V.Z. - Pompano Beach, FL

Your vase was made in the 1930s by the Van Briggle Pottery Company. Your design is known as yucca leaves. It could sell in a shop for around $125.

Recently you wrote about Quimper faience. I have an inkwell marked HR Quimper painted in orange, green and blue designs. It belonged to my late great aunt and has been handed down. Does it have any value?

B.L. - Atlanta, GA

From your photo your Quimper inkwell was made in the late 19th century. Similar pieces have sold at auction for around $800.

I hope you can help me find out something about this mountain landscape signed Bierstadt.

SW.Y. - Freeport, PA

Unfortunately you didn't say if the painting is an oil, watercolor or print. Oil paintings by the artist Albert Bierstadt (German-American-1830-1902) sell at auction for several thousand to over $2,000,000. Watercolors for several hundred up. A print could sell for around $50-$100. Show it to an art appraiser in your area.

Could you please publish any information about Kensington Ware, which was manufactured by Alcoa in New Kensington, PA around the 1930s, 40s. It was a line of aluminum serving pieces.

B.J.G. - Tarentum, PA

According to author-aluminum expert Dannie A. Woodard, Kensington made an extensive line of accessories for cocktail party or buffet service. Some of the pieces had brass handles or ornaments. Prices depend on the eye appeal of the piece. For more information contact Woodard, c/o Aluminum Collector Books, P.O. Box 1346, Weatherford TX 76086. She also does a newsletter.

Enclosed a photo of a painting, possibly Martha and George Washington play chess. It is signed (c)B.A.P. co. Chicago, 1944. USA. Costumes are French or English, 18th century. Any idea of value?

M.K. -New Kensington, PA

What you have is a print of an 18th century French scene of royalty playing chess. It could sell for around $125 or more in a shop.

I recently read your article on women artists. I myself am an artist and am interested in the works of other women artists. I have prints by Jessie Wilcox Smith. Pictures of children with animals. Are they of value?

J. W. - Cohasset, MA

Depending on the size your prints could sell in a shop for $150 or more.

Many years ago we inherited several old farm tools. What we seek is someone that would be interested in purchasing these old tools.

W.B.M. - Weymouth, MA

Look in the Ledger for auction houses selling farm equipment and contact them.

I have in my possession a Morris-style rocker, solid oak, with carved swans on the front legs. There is a brass plaque on the back of the chair that reads Cook & Co.'s Automatic chair, Pat. July 1901, S.A.Cook & Co., Medina, New York Mfg. I've never seen a Morris rocker. Can you tell me anything about it, value, etc.?

R.N. - Marshfield, MA

You have a unique piece of American Patent furniture. Patent furniture was made from 1873-1917. This included patent rockers. When such pieces make a rare auction appearance they can sell for $900 up.

In your QA column a reader, MH of Quincy, had a bowl thought to be Belleek but not with the traditional trademarks. I own such pieces and have them authenticated as being made between the first and third periods, and worth a goodly sum. I would be happy to look at it. Contact David Walsh, P.O. Box 377. Weymouth, MA., 021188.

Such rarities do indeed need a hands-on , expert eye.

K.H. - Huntersville, NC

Your flour sack was made by the Sleepy Eye Flour Co. in the late 19th century to advertise their product with the Indian Chief as a symbol. It could sell at auction for $900 or more to a country or advertising collector.

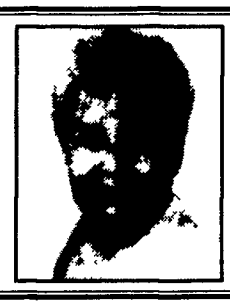
THE ANTIQUE DETECTIVE



Anne Gilbert

Early American Porcelain Rarities Still Await Discovery

There's nothing more exciting for a collector of any antiques category to hear about a new discovery, no matter who or where. It gives every collector that incentive to keep going to flea markets and house sales. It is also interesting to trace the history of a discovered rarity and to see how it creates an awareness that can help recognize similar examples.

Back in 1981 a "picker" (a person who hunts for antiques to sell at a profit to dealers), spent two dollars at a garage sale for a blue and white pickle or sweetmeat stand. He didn't know anything about it other than that it was old and an eye-catcher. That same year it was auctioned off at Sotheby's for $60,000. In 1990 a similar piece was sold at Sotheby's this time for $82,500. In both instances the pieces were made by the American China Manufactory, Bonnin and Morris, Philadelphia around 1770.

What makes the piece a rarity? The factory was open for slightly under two years.

During that time few pieces were made. Only six have been discovered.

The American China Manufactory of Gousse Bonnin (1741-1780) began in Philadelphia in late 1770. After the French and Indian wars (1756-63) the new Colonial upper class, centered in Philadelphia, coveted silver and fine porcelain for their dinner tables. To meet the needs, Gouse Bonnin, a native of Antigua and George Anthony Morris, a Philadelphia Quaker, opened a firm for the "manufacture of porcelain or china earthenware."

CLUES: Research has found advertisements dating to 1771, indicating that the factory mark would be a letter "S" (for Southwark where the factory was located).

But some discovered pieces have an underglaze-blue letter "P" for Philadelphia.

Some pieces have no mark at all. They are done in the manner of English Bow or Plymouth pieces. In fact similar pieces were made in England at the same time. However the English examples are lighter in weight and have a more delicate look.

Old factory records indicate they made complete "sets for the dining and tea table, including dinner plates, sauceboats and openwork fruit baskets". And, of course the shell-shaped pickle dishes.

The porcelain was hand-painted, molded and joined by hand. The stands are approximately 5-5½" high Those found to date are porcelain with an underglaze blue decoration. The pickle stands consist of three scallop shells on small conical feet. These are attached to a central shaft that is encrusted with tiny molded shalls and coral and supports a fluted cup.

One of the discovered pickle stands was commissioned by a wealthy Philadelphia merchant, John Cadwalader. The shells are decorated with "JEC", a coat of arms and a gold cross that is part of the Cadwalader arms.

Other late 18th and early 19th century American porcelain makers were also in business briefly.

It pays to do your research. A good place to start would be the Metropolitan Museum in New York City, in the American Decorative Arts wing where a pair of the pickle stands are in the permanent collection. An educated eye can pay off.

Lancaster Farming Antiques Center

From Cradle To Grave: The Stuff Of Birth, Life And Death Among The Pennsylvania Germans

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Explore the distinctive culture of the Pennsylvania Germans.

The Heritage Center Museum of Lancaster County will be holding a symposium, From the Cradle to the Grave: The Stuff of Birth, Life and Death Among the Pennsylvania Germans on Saturday, Oct. 5 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the Jasper Yeates Education Center, 24 S. Queen St., downtown Lancaster. The fee, which includes a catered lunch, is $30 per person, non-members, or $25 per person, museum members. Registration deadline is Sept. 25.

Nationally renowned authors and historians will talk about Pennsylvania German culture and customs as they relate to traditional rites of passage and the decorative arts. Keynote speaker, Richard Stevick, professor of psychology at Messiah College will focus on Amish rites of passage in Forming the Ties that Bind: Dating, Courtship, and Marriage Among the Amish. Stevick is currently working on a book entitled, Amish Youth: The Critical Years.

Other speakers and their topics include: Clarke E. Hess, Pennsylvania German Textiles: Cradle to Coffin, Corinne Earnest, The Life and Ages of Man in Fraktur-Related Documents, Tom Ryan, Gravestones as Portraits of Social Identity, Peter Seibert, Getting It Off My Chest: The Pennsylvania German Decorated Chest Tradition, and Tandy Hersh, Motifs As Clues to Embroidered Textiles.

For more information and to make reservations, contact Sheila Rohrer at the Heritage Center Museum of Lancaster County at (717) 299-6440 or e-mail at heritage@paonline.com.

AN AUCTION
OF A 25± ACRE FARMETTE
LOCATED IN THE MIDDLETOWN VALLEY
ON-SITE
TUESDAY•SEPTEMBER 24TH, 2002 • 6:30 P.M.

The real estate with improvements is located in Frederick County's 3rd District along Maryland Route 17 at 8938 MYERSVILLE ROAD with a land area of approximately 24.808 acres which is better described at Liber 1229, Folio 193 or Map 55, Grid 4, Parcel 6, Group 82, Plat 62/38.

IMPROVEMENTS to this very nice farmette include a well maintained two story framed home containing a large dine-in country kitchen with appliances and walk-in pantry, dining room, living room and bath on the first story and four bedrooms and a bath with shower on the second level. The home also has attic and basement areas as well as a nice front porch. Heat in the home is provided by an electric baseboard system, water by an on-site well and a septic provides for the sewage. Also located on this nice property are two barns, a large three bay equipment/garage building with shop area, milk and chicken houses as well as other storage and multi-purpose structures.

AUCTION COMPANY NOTE: Located in a beautiful setting between Myersville and Middletown, this outstanding property is just minutes from Interstate 70 with the Little Catoctin flowing through its approximately 25 acres. Road frontage is found on both the Myersville and Old Hafmony Roads with approximately fifty percent of the lands being tillable and the remaining landscaped and surrounding the home or in pasture and woodlands.

INSPECTION OF THE REAL ESTATE may be made during an OPEN HOUSE on Sunday, September 1st between the hours of 1 and 4 p.m. Or by contacting a representative at 301-371-4825 for an appointment.

TERMS OF THE REAL ESTATE include a non-refundable deposit of $25,000.00 in certified funds in the form of cash, certified check or in other forms as the Auction Company may determine acceptable prior to the auction. One half of the documentary stamps and transfer fees are to be paid by the purchaser, with taxes and utilities, if any, prorated to date of settlement. Settlement to be made within 45 days. The sale is subject only to the acceptance of the representatives. NO BUYERS PREMIUM.

The Compton Family is very thankful for the progress Bill has made since being overcome by silo gas and the ensuing stroke. The support from friends and community has been appreciated. However, the healing has been a process, frustrating at times, and Jim's newly rebuilt knees cannot handle the strain.

Perhaps not the ideal time to sell...but the perfect time to buy!

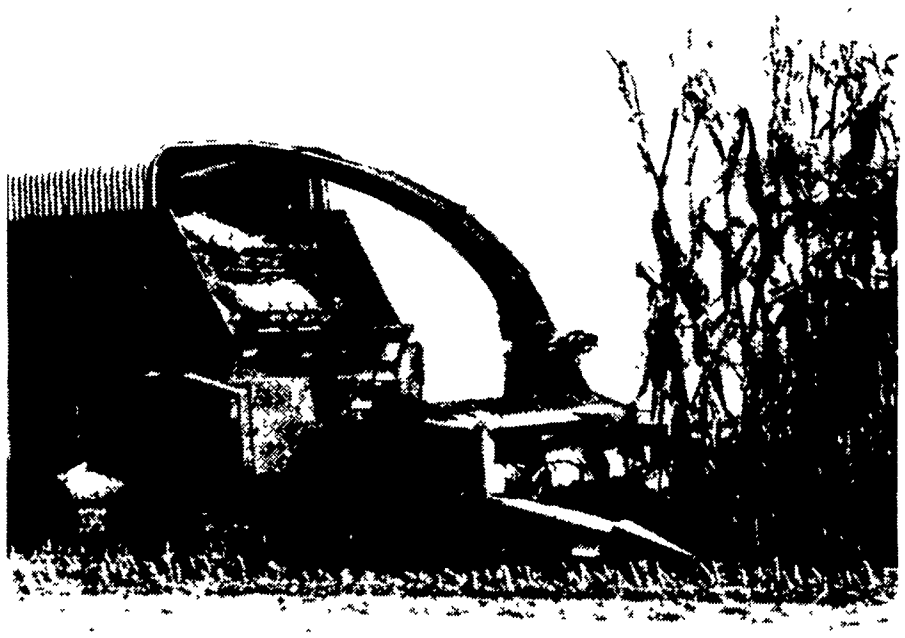
Move mountains of forage

Keeping pace with your harvester and forage wagons can be a challenge...unless you have a New Holland forage blower. The F62B moves mountains of forage - fast!

- High-capacity blower center-fills silos over 100 feet tall
- 37-inch large-capacity hopper; 12-inch feed auger; 60-inch diameter blower fan
- Blows 180 tons per hour of corn silage; 110 tons per hour of haylage

NEW HOLLAND



Chop and process

Chop and process corn silage in one operation with New Holland's optional onboard CropPro™ crop processor available on Models FP230 and FP240 forage harvesters. CropPro™ shears cobs and stems and cracks and crushes kernels, producing silage that's higher in effective fiber and more digestible for increased milk production. You can easily switch to haylage by removing a single baffle.

New Test Simplifies Soil Quality Assessment

PIKETON, Ohio — Assessing soil organic matter for overall soil quality can now be done in an agricultural field, a greenhouse and even a homeowner's backyard garden.

Ohio State University researchers have developed a method for measuring soil quality that involves mixing the soil with a non-toxic solution and measuring active carbon content by matching the color of the solution to a color-coded chart. The work is in association with Ray Weil, a soil scientist with the University of Maryland.

Rafiq Islam, a soil and water specialist with Ohio State's South Centers at Piketon, said the simplified test would enable users to measure soil quality directly on site and make soil management practices based on the results. The study will be published in the American Journal of Alternate Agriculture.

"With this test anyone can monitor the quality of their soil right in the field and measure it over time based on what management practices they've applied," said Islam. "It's not meant to replace the commercial soil tests, but it's just another tool for farmers who can then conduct additional soil tests or consult professionals if they do have poor soil quality."

Islam and Ohio State horticulturist Shawn Wright said the test is so simple that farmers could not only use it, but greenhouse professionals, landscape consultants and even home gardeners could take advantage of its efficiency.

Soil organic matter is a core indicator of soil quality, and soil quality is usually characterized by high levels of active carbon. Active carbon includes microbial biomass, amino acids, soluble carbon and soil carbohydrates. Any changes in the levels of active carbon changes the level of organic matter, resulting in either a degradation or improvement in soil quality.

Islam said that current commercial soil tests do not measure active carbon content. Total soil organic matter tests can be calculated in the lab, but are time consuming, not user-friendly and do not give an accurate measurement of active carbon since the results also include passive carbon, the bulk of soil organic content that changes little when soil properties are altered.

"Most organic matter is not active," said Islam. "So acquiring results from a test that also accounts for inactive carbon is not a very accurate assessment of soil quality. We needed a test that separated the active carbon from the rest of the soil content."

The result is a method that can accurately identify active carbon in field and lab situations on soils around the world. For example, soils tested in South and Central America, the mid-Atlantic, North Dakota, Kansas, New Jersey, Africa, and Asia measured for active carbon 98 percent of the time.

Researchers were also able to test for active carbon between plowing and no-till production systems compared to methods that tested for total carbon content. They found that while neither system showed any significant difference in total carbon levels, the no-till system produced a higher active carbon content under the new testing method.

"The test gives you an idea of soil structure either for the type of soil you are planting in and even for the type of production system you are using," said Islam.

The simplicity behind the test involves its active ingredient — potassium permanganate and some other components. Islam said the non-toxic deep purple solution reacts with the active carbon in the soil when the soil is mixed with the solution and shaken. The higher the active carbon levels, the lighter in color the solution becomes. Users can then compare the result to a chart that ranges from deep purple, indicating poor soil quality, to light pink, indicating excellent soil quality.

The researchers equate the test to soil pH kits. "It's simple and cost effective, requires no elaborate equipment and can be tested on a wide variety of soil types," said Wright.

Researchers plan to develop a data bank of active carbon analyses on thousands of soils around the world.

AEM Announces Student Engineering Awards

CHICAGO, Ill. — Winners of the Association of Equipment Manufacturers' (AEM) 65th Annual Student Engineering and Mechanization Awards were honored during a special luncheon and awards presentation sponsored by the Association at the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE) Annual International Meeting in Chicago. The awards are given annually to those ASAE student branches which compiled the most outstanding record of activities and accomplishments in the previous year.

Douglas M. Durant of Deere and Company and chairman of AEM's Farm Equipment Council engineering liaison committee, along with Allen Rider of CNH and AEM's vice chairman-agriculture, presented a gold cup to those student branches receiving top honors. First and second runners-up received honorable mention plaques.

The student engineering branches were divided into two groups (A & B) based on size of membership — Group A consists of engineering branches with 33 or more members while Group B consists of engineering branches with less than 33 members.

The 2002 winners and runners-up are:

Student Engineering Branch — Group A — Winner: Iowa State University, Iowa Student Engineering Branch; First runner-up: Texas A & M University, Texas Student Engineering Branch; and Second runner-up: Kansas State University, Kansas Student Engineering Branch.

Student Engineering Branch — Group B — Winner: Ohio State University, Ohio Student Engineering Branch; First runners-up: North Dakota State University, North Dakota Student Engineering Branch and University of Tennessee, Tennessee Student Engineering Branch; and Second runner-up: University of Missouri-Columbia, Missouri Student Engineering Branch.

Student Mechanization Branch Winners — Winner: Iowa State University, Iowa Student Agricultural Systems Technology Branch; First runner-up: University of Illinois, Illinois Student Agricultural Mechanization Branch; and Second runner-up: Texas A & M University, Texas Student Mechanization Branch.

Big capacity. Uniform chop.

Only the FP230 and FP240 forage harvesters from New Holland give you best-in-class and chop quality.

- Rugged 1,000-rpm driveline matches higher-horsepower tractors up to 225 and 300 PTO hp.
- Massive 12-knife cutterhead produces a uniform length of cut from 3/16" to 1-5/8" with four knives.
- Knife sharpening and shearbar adjustment are easy to keep cutting performance at its best.
- Optional on-board Crop-Pro™ crop processor makes feed more digestible and saves the expense and time of using a stationary roller mill.
- Optional Metalert® III electronic metal detector gives you peace of mind.

Stop in and see the FP230 with Crop Processor today.

Move mountains of forage

Keeping pace with your harvester and forage wagons can be a challenge...unless you have a New Holland forage blower. Choose from two models that move mountains of forage–fast!

Model F62B
- High-capacity blower center-fills silos over 100 feet tall
- 37-inch large-capacity hopper; 12-inch feed auger; 60-inch diameter blower fan
- Blows 180 tons per hour of corn silage; 110 tons per hour of haylage

Model 40 Whirl-a-Feed®
- Center fills silos 80 feet and higher
- Efficient Whirl-A-Feed® high-speed rotary table spins crop into the blower
- Blows 150 tons of corn silage per hour; 80 tons of haylage per hour

Come in for a demonstration today!

Looking to Upgrade Your Cornhead?

Hoober has the new 6 Row and 8 Row Case IH 2200 Series Cornheads in Stock

- Hydraulic adjustable stripper plates allow on-the-go adjustments in varying crop conditions
- Low profile poly-hoods and dividers effectively "hug" the ground, moving more ears into the header to increase efficiency
- Larger diameter auger (16") moves more crop into the feeding area, increasing the feeding capacity of the cornhead.

DO A 180° IN THE WAY YOU WORK.
FENDT REVERSE STATION TRACTORS
When you invest in a FENDT Tractor with Reverse Station you're actually getting several pieces of equipment. In less than a minute you can turn this ingenious tractor into a self-propelled forage harvester, swather, windrower, chopper, even a powerful snowthrower. Seat, steering wheel and the entire instrumentation swings 180° and locks in place. And from this position, you've never had a better view of your work.

'More Beef For Less Money' Highlight Of Ohio Field Day

COSHOCTON, Ohio — Beef cattle farmers know all too well that winter feeding takes a big bite out of the ruminants' maintenance budget. The good news is that alternative feeding methods can reduce the total cost of raising cows without affecting productivity.

Steven Loerch, a researcher with the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center (OARDC) in Wooster, shared the news with visitors during the Agricultural Systems and the Environment Field Day, July 10 at the North Appalachian Experimental Watershed near Coshocton.

The event was sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) and OARDC, which is the research arm of Ohio State University's College of Food, Agricultural, and Environmental Sciences.

During the past three winters, Loerch tested three different feeding systems, comparing their cost and effect on the growth and reproduction of cows.

"We used round-baled grass hay, whole corn and stockpiled pasture," Loerch said. "Cows on all three wintering systems gained about the same weight from October to mid-February and maintained similar body-condition scores. The calves' weight at birth and during the summer, as well as conception rates, were also very similar."

Very similar, indeed. Except for the price.

Hay is the most commonly used winter feed for beef cattle — but it's also the most expensive. Each cow requires a daily intake of 40 pounds of round-baled hay, which amounts to $1.61 if pricing hay at $80 per ton.

At $2 per bushel, or $71 per ton, corn is not only cheaper than hay, but it also boasts a much higher energy value. According to Loerch's research, a daily diet consisting of 12 pounds of corn, four pounds of hay and two pounds of a protein-and-mineral supplement provides the same number of calories as 40 pounds of hay — at a cost of only 84 cents.

"Corn grain is the least expensive harvested source of digestible energy per unit available to producers in Ohio," Loerch explained. "Because hay only has about half the energy value as corn grain, the break-even price for hay on an energy basis would be approximately $40 a ton. So, unless you can get hay for $40 a ton or less, your most economical choice is corn."

Whole-shelled — not ground corn — is recommended for this feeding method. Previous Ohio State research shows that whole corn works better when the daily intake of hay per cow is limited to five pounds or less. Whole corn delays fermentation and provides energy all day long, so the animals only need to be fed once a day.

"If corn is used to provide most of the energy, then the intake has to be restricted so the cows don't get fat," Loerch pointed out. "It takes four or five days for the animals to get used to the new diet and to not having food available all through the day. It is important to keep the cows in a securely fenced area and make sure that bunk space is adequate so that all of them get their share of food."

Cattle on this corn-based nutrition program also need to be fed a small amount of hay, since forage is essential to maintaining a healthy rumen. Also necessary is a supplement containing ground corn, soybean meal, urea, limestone, dicalcium phosphate, and other minerals and vitamins.

Loerch also tested the profitability of stockpiled pasture as a winter feeding system.

"We had 31 cows grazing 34 acres of stockpiled orchard grass," Loerch said. "The pastures were fertilized with ammonium nitrate on Aug. 1 and set aside until the trial began on Oct. 27. Forage was depleted by mid-February, after which the cows were put on the corn-based diet. They were also fed corn during days of snow cover, approximately 14 days each winter."

According to Loerch, it costs about 43 cents per day to maintain a cow on pasture.

"The value of pasture is about $53 per acre," Loerch said. "If you have other uses for your pasture that will generate more money than that, then stockpiling forage is not the best option. Otherwise, it's the cheapest winter feeding method available."

Some 50 people, mainly farmers and soil and water conservation specialists, attended the Coshocton field day. Other topics of interest included the positive effect of conservation tillage (no-till) and earthworms on soil and water quality, pasture water quality and carbon sequestration, and the use of lysimeters to evaluate water quality in different soil conditions.

"This field day was a great opportunity to hear about the latest USDA and OARDC research findings on water quality, soil conservation, pasture management and beef cattle management systems," said Kenneth Scaife, OARDC assistant to the director for field operations.

"The USDA also promoted its initiatives for horticulture, soil conservation and water quality, hydrology, and dairy grazing research efforts for the future," Scaife added. "If these initiatives are funded, the collaboration between OARDC and USDA scientists would be strengthened."

Everlast laps better.

Everlast II metal roofing and siding overlaps are stronger, tighter, and virtually invisibile. Lap edges are less subject to deforming bends during erection. Driving rain is less likely to penetrate at the laps.

Metal Roofing & Siding
The Ultimate G-100 Process
"The Best"
1 Valspar 10S Finish Coat
2 Epoxy Primer
3 Zinc Phosphate Pretreatment
4 G-100 Zinc Coating
5 Full Hard Steel (80,000 min. yield)
6 Heat formed, less paint cracks
Everlast II
NOTE! It is more important what is under the paint than what you see on top!
1 One of the best paints, superior acid rain, cracking resistance and color retention
2. Primer coat promotes outstanding top coat adhesion.
3 Zinc phosphate pretreatment. This is a very important process - if your current supplier cannot supply you with this or does not know, you should reconsider.
4 G-100 Galvanized Most metal roofing has approx 40% less galvanized under the paint G-100 is more galvanized than most unpainted panels
5. Full Hard: Anything less than full hard will bend easier, lower snow loads, etc
6 Heat formed: Metal is painted before ribs are formed Most paint cracks at bends, heat forming greatly reduces cracks (check metal siding that is installed for 5-10 years)
7 Stronger design, superior strength, more metal per L F
8. Add Everything Together And Price Should Be $53.37 Per Square $1.69 Per L.F.
OUR SPECIAL PRICE ONLY
$48.32 PER SQUARE
$1.53 PER LINEAL FT.

Attention: Swine and Poultry Producers

Announcing:

Crude Soy Oil Now Available

With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer soybean oil as an animal nutrition product. Processing the soybeans ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

Crude Soybean Oil

A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. Crude soy oil is a natural alternative to animal fats and provides needed energy in various rations.

Uses of Crude Soy Oil Include:

- Use as a high energy feed ingredient in swine and poultry diets.
- Especially useful in sow lactation diets, pig starter and grow/finish diets.
- Used as an added energy source in broiler, turkey and layer feeds.
- Can be used for dust control purposes.
- Can be used as a lubricant for feeding systems.

Advantages of Crude Soy Oil:

- Use as a direct replacement for animal fat.
- Vegetable based product.
- Holding tank does not need to be heated if temperature is above 30 degrees, which reduces storage and handling costs compared to animal fat.
- Bulk delivery, partial loads available direct to farm by Keystone Mills
- Customer may pick up to save delivery costs.

Other Soy Products Available:

- Keystone offers Golden Pro 46 XP which is 46% protein - 6-7% oil, Golden Meal 40 which is 40% crude protein with 18% oil.

Keystone Mills Soybean Exchange Program

- We will take your soybeans in trade for Golden ProXP 46, Golden Meal 40.
- Contact Keystone Mills for details on our soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products.

ALFALFA SEED $1.55/Lb.
from the Dakota's Trask Family Seeds
- Features grower to grower direct seed sales
- S D S U tested and researched
- Distributed from Parkesburg, PA
- $1.55/per lb in 60 lb bags
- Varieties S D Common, Vernal, and Rhyzoma
- Dakota alfalfas are dormancy rated at 2' and proven to excel in winter hardiness and production!
- Trask Seed is American grown and priced to reflect no corporate monopolies!

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased.

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area harvesting superb alfalfa from South Dakota seed

The University of Maryland is accepting applications for an Agricultural Technician at the Central Maryland Research & Education Center-Clarksville facility. This position will provide support for all aspects of the daily activities and research conducted on dairy cattle at the facility.

Primary focus will be on calf and dry cow management. While the primary responsibilities will be associated with the dairy research, the successful candidate will also assist with milking, feeding and other animal care and handling duties; dairy parlor maintenance and cleaning; and general farm duties as needed. Thorough knowledge of and skill in the use of farm equipment is needed. Effective organizational and communication skills are required. The capability to carry out heavy physical labor and to work in harsh weather conditions is necessary.

The candidate must possess a high school diploma or GED, and three years experience in agricultural work, preferably dairy-related, with one year in research. A valid Maryland driver's license is required. Computer experience, including a working knowledge of spreadsheets, word processing and electronic mail, is preferred.

Starting salary range: $25,100 to $26,670 (Non-exempt Pay Range 8). For application information, please call 301.405.5679 or access web site at www.personnel.umd.edu. Closing date 09/06/02. EOE/AA
